

Descendants of Adam White

Generation No. 1

1. ADAM¹ WHITE was born Abt. 1627 in Scotland, and died December 19, 1708 in Bushmills, County Antrim, Ireland.

Notes for ADAM WHITE:

Scottish and Irish sources reveal the following data concerning the life and ministry of the Reverend Adam White, putative ancestor of Moses and Hugh White of Delaware and Pennsylvania. Adam White was born in Scotland circa 1620-1625. He was educated at Glasgow University and received a Master of Arts degree in 1648. He was ordained - Clondevaddock (Fannet), 1654. He received 100 pounds a year from the Proctorate, 1655. Deposed for non-conformity, 1661, but continued to minister. Excommunicated and imprisoned in Lifford, 1664-1670 for disobeying a summons issued by Leslie, Bishop of Raphoe. Resigned September 18, 1672. Installed Ardstraw. Fled to Scotland, 1688. Resigned 1692. Installed Billy, near Dunluce, 1692. Died December 19, 1708.

The exodus from Scotland to Ulster continued for some years. In July, 1635, a James Blair of Ayrshire, wrote:

"Above ten thousand persons, have , within two years past, left this country - between Aberdeen and Inverness, and gone over to Ireland. They have come by the hundred, through this town, and three hundred shipped together on one tide."

The founders of the Presbyterian Church in Ulster, were Clergymen, who took refuge, driven from Scotland and England, by the persecuting spirit, abroad then, against Puritans.

But in 1637, the Calvinists Confession of Faith was altered. Bishops tinged with Puritanism, were deposed. High churchmen were placed in their stead. Conformity to the Established Church was enforced with pains and penalties. Deputy Wentworth imposed on the Ulster Presbyterians an oath of passive obedience - which became. known as the Black Oath. All Scots were disarmed, less they be inclined to stage a Rising.

The Scots in the Laggan came under the sway of Bishop Leslie of Raphoe - "who came down heavy on them." He summoned four Ministers to his court, excommunicated them and sent them to prison, where they were kept for six years. They were- John Hart, Thomas Waite, Adam White, and William Semple.

A Presbyterian Minister discovered "administrating the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, was fined £100. Some fled back to Scotland. Others, though they could not exercise their ministry, though their stipends were sequestered, changed their apparel to that of countrymen, taking what opportunities they could to preach in barns or glens."

The Established Church declared all marriages null and void that were not solemnised in their Church. So many had to be kept quiet.

From "The Scot in Ulster." By John Harrison.

The preceding was taken from the book Representative Descendants of the Scotch-Irish Brothers Moses and Hugh White, by William B. White.

Further, it is important to note, as does William B. White that "there is no specific, direct statement to the effect that Adam White was the father or grandfather of Hugh [and Moses] White the immigrant[s]." There is "no definitive evidence to identify the names of their parents." Much has been speculated and conjectured in this regard but no one has yet to come forward with the necessary evidence linking Adam White to the two brothers. Hopefully, given time, something veracious will surface.

White is a common name throughout the world. In Ireland it stems mainly from the "le Whytes" who came to Ireland with the Anglo-Normans; there were also Whites who came from England. The name in Irish is either spelled de Faoite or Mac Faoitigh. The Whites can be found in Down, Limerick, Sligo and Wexford.

History of the White Surname

(Information provided by the Ulster Historical Foundation who completed an in-depth search on our Ancestors (in October, 1999) and Rickey E. White (© 11-10-1997 appearing here with permission).

The surname White/Whyte is one of the fifty most common names found in Ireland.

The surname White is of several possible origins: 1) Old English hwit, meaning 'white', denoting a person with fair complexion or light colored hair, 2) Old English wiht, denoting a person who lived by a bend in a river or road, and 3) Old English wait, a 'look-out post'.

White is one of the twenty-five most common names in England and Wales. Of Welsh origin, it is believed to have been taken from the ancient word Gwyn or Wynne, meaning "White." It is believed to have been given to its original bearer because of the color of his skin or hair. It is variously found in ancient records in the forms of White, Whyte, Whitt, and Wight.

In Lowland Scotland the name comes from the Old English hwit, but in the Scottish Highlands, it is derived from the Gaelic name MacBille Bhain, "son of the fair youth or servant". White and Whyte were adopted by both MacGregors and Lamonts as colour names and is one of the fifty most common in Scotland.

Historically, it is said that the White family derives its descent from Roderick the Great 877 A.D., whose descendant, Rhys ap Tudor, King of South Wales, was slain in 1093; and from Otho, who lived in the time of Edward the Confessor, about 1042. Otho was the father of Walter Fitz Otho, who had Gerald Fitz Walter, who married Nesta, daughter of Rhys ap Tudor.

Nesta and Gerald Fitz Walter were the parents of Maurice Fitz Gerald, who had Walter White, the first known bearer of this surname. This Walter was Knighted by Henry II in 1171. Robert White, of this line, was a Knight of Yorkshire in 1303. In 1394 Johannes White of North Colyngham, Nottinghamshire, is named in the list of the landed gentry of 1428. Robert White, merchant and mayor of the staple of Calais, made his home at various times in the counties of Hampshire, Kent, and Surrey in the middle of the fifteenth century.

Robert, son of Robert of Calais, had two sons, Thomas and John. Thomas, son of Robert, married Agnes Richards and had four sons, George, John, Richard and Thomas, Jr. He was granted three manors in Somerset in 1556 by the king. John, son of Robert, bought lands in Tuxford, Nottinghamshire, and had a son, Thomas, who married Ann Cecil, eldest sister of William, Lord

Burleigh.

Two members of the White family removed to Ireland about the year 1171. They were Walter White and his brother William (?). Others of the family later made their homes in England.

Scots often named children by following a simple set of rules. Don't use these as a firm guide (there were often variations, for all sorts of reasons) but you may find that some of your ancestors used these too:

1st son named after father's father
2nd son named after mother's father
3rd son named after father

1st daughter named after mother's mother
2nd daughter named after father's mother
3rd daughter named after mother

The Established Church declared all marriages null and void that were not solemnised in their Church. So many had to be kept quiet.

From "The Scot in Ulster." By John Harrison.

At the Restoration, in which they heartily co-operated, there were in Ulster seventy ministers in fixed charges, with nearly eighty parishes or congregations containing one hundred thousand persons. There were five presbyteries holding monthly meetings and annual visitations of all the congregations within their bounds, and coming together in general synod four times a year. Entire conformity with the Scottish Church was maintained, and strict discipline was enforced by pastoral visitations, kirk-sessions and presbyteries.

After the Restoration the determination of the government to put down Presbyterianism was speedily felt in Ireland. In 1661 the lords justices forbade all unlawful assemblies, and in these they included meetings of presbytery as exercising ecclesiastical jurisdiction not warranted by the law. Bishop Jeremy Taylor was forward in this work of persecution. The ministers refused to take the Oath of Supremacy without the qualification suggested by Usher. Their parishes were declared vacant, and episcopal clergy appointed to them. The ejected ministers were forbidden to preach or administer the sacraments. In Ulster sixty-one ministers were ejected. Of seventy only seven conformed. Under Ormonde, in 1665, ministers were again permitted to revive Wales.

Generation No. 2

2. MOSES² WHITE (*ADAM*¹) was born Abt. 1665 in Scotland, and died March 12, 1735 in New Castle, DE. He married ISABELLA COCHRAN, daughter of WILLIAM COCHRAN.

Notes for MOSES WHITE:

Moses White was born in Scotland about 1675 and died in New Castle, Delaware in 1735. He, his brother Hugh, and their families arrived in Pennsylvania as immigrants before November 4, 1722. David White, the eldest son of Moses, told his descendants that his parents were Presbyterian Covenanters in Scotland during the third and final "Covenanter War" in which Britain sent troops to kill members of the Presbyterian Church and destroy their organization. The brief historical perspective which follows will help as a backdrop to the White's immigration to America.

Scottish immigration to America was sporadic but continuous depending largely on the political climate in Scotland and England. Large scale immigration usually took place at a time of the Scottish peoples attempts to establish independent colonies in Nova Scotia, New Jersey, and South Carolina. Other immigration came with Scottish government attempts to get rid of political unrest resulting in the expulsion to the colonies of a large number of political prisoners. The Scottish attempts at independent colonies failed or were forced to merge with the English efforts. This resulted in rather disproportionately large numbers of Scots in the early colonial efforts. H. E. Egerton, in his book on British Colonial Policy, estimated that by 1762 about one-third of the European inhabitants were Scots

Banishment to the colonies was originally only possible if convicted of a major crime by the Scottish Privy Council. In 1671 the Court of Judiciary was given the same power. Several events brought great numbers of banished persons to the colonies. The aftermath of the Scottish Civil War sent thousands of soldiers as prisoners to Virginia, New England, and the West Indies. In May of 1656 some 1200 were shipped out of Scotland by Cromwell rule.

Calvinism made great inroads into the souls of the Scots under the preaching of John Knox in the late 1500's. He believed, as John Calvin, that the world was divided into the elect and the damned. The Roman Church was to him, a "harlot . . . altogether polluted with all kinds of spiritual fornication." He also detested women rulers of Europe, and in particular, Mary Queen of Scots. By 1638 Protestantism had taken a firm hold and the Scottish ministry and laity signed the National Covenant. This Covenant reaffirmed the Presbyterian faith and ritual which was counter to the new canon being imposed by the English King Charles. The new Covenant urged that the local church was separate from the state. It also believed that oaths of loyalty should only be given to God not to man or government, and especially not to an English king. Charles considered Presbytery as "not a religion for gentlemen." It is a constant source of astonishment to the modern reader how little Charles knew about the deep roots of Presbyterianism that had been planted in Scotland and how strongly the Covenanters would fight all attempts to return Scotland to episcopacy. His years in exile had taught him very little.

As King of Scotland, Charles signed two Covenants in 1649 merely to secure his own coronation. When he restored James VI's method of himself choosing the Committee of Articles, he not only tried to strengthen his position in relation to Parliament, but also to bring back the bishops and restore the system of patronage that chose ministers. All ministers chosen since 1649 were required to resign and to reapply for their posts from the bishops and lairds. One-third of all Scottish ministers refused and held services in defiance of the law. Troops were sent to enforce the regulations but their presence only made the Calvinist Covenanters more eager to serve their God in their own way. In 1679, claiming to be obeying a command from on high, they murdered Archbishop Sharp.

The government decided to intervene to bring the rebels to heel. Charles ordered the dispersal of the Glasgow Assembly which was charged with treason and sent a 21,000 man army, under the command of James, Duke of Monmouth (an illegitimate son of the King), to Scotland. The so called "Covenanters" raised an army of 26,000 men of nationalistic and religious fervor. The Covenanters were defeated at Bothwell Brig and the survivors were dealt with severely. Some 1700 men and women were banished to the plantations of the colonies. The reaction and counter-reactions that followed gave the period of the 1680's the title of "The Killing Time."

The failure of the Jacobite Rebellions of 1715 and 1745 brought another 1,600 Scottish men, women, and children to America. To give readers a reference point in history and to help the reader better appreciate the life and times of our ancestors I have here included an account of the Rise and Fall of the Jacobite Rebellion by Mark Monaghan:

"The word Jacobite comes from the Jacob's, or James' from the Royal House of Stuart. The followers of the James' (James V through to VII) were therefore known as Jacobites.

The situation was like this: England had been ruled by Protestant Queen Elizabeth I, she was succeeded by James I of England (James VI of Scotland). Catholic and Protestant divide not only in England but also in Scotland, Ireland, and to a lesser degree France and Germany was the worst it had ever been. Support within all these countries for one family over another was across the board. Protestant support in Scotland and England was heavier than that of the Catholics. Both countries were under the rule of the Stuarts and this did not run well with the protestant parliament of the more powerful English. The Stuarts were eventually exiled and forced to retire to France due to the support of the Act of Union in 1707 which basically forced Scotland to accept a situation that was not in their favor. Queen Anne died without an heir and the Act of Union, amongst other things, allowed the German House of Hanover to take the crown. This was something that the English desperately wanted, as it was regarded then that Catholicism was closer to evil than good.

For 40 years the Stuarts in France, the legitimate Blood line, descended from Scottish blood, had been stating their claims to the throne's of both Scotland and England and Ireland. But religion and politics were one, and the Stuarts were out.

With the Act of Union in place, and the Hanovarian head placed beneath the crown, England was happy and the rest just had to fall in line.

James VIII (the old pretender) had a lot of support from within France, Ireland, Scotland and even England. But he never took it upon himself to really do anything about it. When his son was born, hopes for a new Stuart king fueled the passions of already unhappy followers. Charles Edward Stuart (Bonnie Prince Charlie) started to realize by the age of 13 that he could fulfill a dream and place his head under the crown and regain the throne that was rightfully theirs in the first place, or so he thought. And many agreed.

Now 23 years old, and with the blessing of his father and the support of a French invasion force, he decided to make his claim and lead the House of Stuart back to the crown. He traveled to Scotland to rally support but along the way there was a change of heart from the French support and they left him unsupported. Knowing that there was little he could do without military might, he of course did very little, but in rallying support from the Scots, Irish and English he hoped to provoke the French into taking the opportunity which they almost had done just before.

When he arrived in the Highlands, songs, poems and stories that the Prince was here gained momentum and his army of faithful Highlanders began to emerge. Men, women and children rallied behind his standard and shock waves began to make its way to London. Some supported him by taking the call to arms, and others supported the Stuart claim by simply casting a blind eye and neither supporting him or opposing him, and in sense by doing nothing they did in fact help him dramatically. With a fairly healthy army of Highlanders, Charles made his way south to Edinburgh which he entered with no opposition. He did however meet his first opponent south of Edinburgh in Prestonpans, where he swiftly defeated Cope's army of 4,000 men. Celebration was in order and a great party was underway at Holyrood House in Edinburgh. London quivered at the thought of the Highlanders on the march again, and it seemed like Charles was doing exactly what he had threatened to do. Scotland was theirs now, and it would be easy to stay and keep Scotland, under the Stuarts theirs. Charles disagreed and knew that his only option was to take England or Nothing. It may have been easy to march through Scotland, but he knew that maybe not now, but eventually the English would mass a mighty army and push him back out. His only choice was to move south.

News spread to London and England feared that at any moment an invasion force from France would indeed take them from the South. The English king, George II made his plans and rallied his own army together which was made up of his own British troops, Dutch troops, German support (remember they were Hanoverians) and mercenaries from all over. Amongst those put in charge were General Wade, and William Augustus, Duke of Cumberland.

In order to dampen the fears that their southern subjects may have had regarding French invasion and the already marching Jacobite Rebels, they set the propaganda machine in place. The most prominent and telling statement that was made at this time was the insertion of a new verse in the British National Anthem, The verse is as follows sung to the tune of God save the Queen:

God grant that Marshal Wade,
May by Thy Mighty aid,
Victory bring,
May he sedition hush,
And like a torrent rush,
Rebellious Scots to crush,
God save the King.

Meanwhile Charles and his army had now been in England for 26 days and were in Derby, 120 miles from London. It was guessed by Cumberland that the Prince would have actually marched down through Wales in order to pick up more support and to favor the higher ground. He was wrong. When news arrived that Charles was in Derby while Wade was far off in Wales, London feared the worst. This was the closest the Charles would ever get to actually achieving his dream. If it were not for the next card which was about to be played, The House of Stuart could have moved forces into London with only a small London militia as opposition. Cumberland sent a spy to the Highlanders camp with news that a force of 30,000 men were heading straight for them. Little did Charles know that this news was in fact a lie, but he took it for gospel and on advice from his council of supporters they decided that they should return home.

At this time his troops had been on the move for weeks. Far from home and far from supplies: although there was no opposition there was also no support, and so supplies were in demand. Winter was upon them and all were in favor of a return home and the wait for spring.

And this is what they did. But on their long march back to Scotland they didn't realize that this move gave Cumberland the chance to move across the country and follow on behind them.

6th of September - Black Friday. Charles made the retreat with his army of just over 5,000 and behind him an army of 30,000 which he believed awaited him if he should decide to change his mind. Even he knew that this was his only real choice given the information at hand.

Making his way to Stirling his men still had it within them to take on the English at Falkirk and beat what opposition there was there. However it left his men without ammunition and sapped what little strength they had left. In the bleak cold of winter his army made camp at Stirling and took respite there for 5 weeks while the Prince moved on to Glasgow.

Time passed and they slowly made their way through the hills back home to the Highlands. They had barely made camp in Inverness when news arrived that Cumberland had made camp in Nairn: about 15 miles away. Exhausted, freezing, starving, out of supplies and ammunition some of his army went home to their families and some stayed. Charles thought he would take the upper hand and strike first. He sent 1,500 of his best troops to make a night march on Cumberland's camp. In the morning they returned after having no success and later that morning on April 16th 1746 Cumberland's army marched onto the moors at Culloden and faced his foe.

Just over 4,000 Jacobite supporters stood in the snow driven moors in mid morning, some had been up all night after their night march, all were starving, tired and worse for wear. A mixture of Clans, Irish and men from the ages of 51 years to as young as 13 stood in front of a veteran force of over 9,000 well supplied infantry and cavalry.

Cumberland's troops were made up of English veterans fresh from Europe and over 4,000 Scots: more Scots were facing Charles than were standing next to him. For many though it was more a case of Clan revenge than a fight for a crown. One example is the Chisholms. On both sides Clansman faced Clansman - Chisholm faced Chisholm - and even brother faced brother.

The Duke's army had canon and raffle-musket. Each man equipped with enough ammunition for at least 24 rounds. On the Prince's side they were armed with musket-pistols - and no ammunition. He too had 3lb canons - but supplied with 4lb shot. It was back to the old ways - The Highland Charge.

A little after 12:30 that afternoon the Princes side fired what canon they had and waited for the return volley - which came swiftly. His troops were cut down in the dozen by the onslaught of Cumberland's artillery. Disemboweled by the flying balls of 4lb steel, arms legs and heads were scattered amongst the bunched up and freezing Jacobites. It all lasted for minutes and when the smoke cleared all that was left to do was to run or charge - the Jacobites outnumbered by at least 2 to 1 Charged on the right flank of Cumberland's lines. For a brief spell the Duke's troops on the right were scattered, but soon closed ranks on the charging Highlanders and began the massacre, in turn scattering the Highlanders across 'Cumberland's Bloody Killing Field'.

By 1:00, only 30 minutes later it was all over and those Highlanders, who could, ran for cover and back to their homes. By Cumberland's own estimate, some 2,000 Highlanders lay dead on Culloden

Moor. These figures have never been seriously challenged and neither has the figure of 300 dead and injured from his side. A more exact figure has been put forward of 1,500 Highlanders but still only 300 of the Duke's men.

The memories of Culloden still run deep in the blood of Highlanders the world over because this battle was not the end - it was just the beginning!

Cumberland gave orders for "No Quarter Given": in other words 'none shall live'. His army marched on and killed every wounded Highlander left on the field - and then made his way to Inverness to carry on the fight. Raiding homes looking for Jacobites, all were labeled as one and swiftly put either to the end of a musket - bayonet - hangman's rope or burnt alive in their homes. Women, children, old and young, his orders were "No Quarter Given" - and none was.

The slaughter did not end their on that day, and this is the significance of the Jacobites in Scottish history: particularly Highland history. For months his army moved around the Highlands clearing out any threat once and for all that Highlander should ever pick up a Broadsword against England. It can be quoted from English parliament in reply to Cumberland's reports that they sent message saying "It will be no great mischief if all should fall". The support for Cumberland's ethnic cleansing was total.

Some 500 years before Culloden it is also documented that King Edward (Longshanks) I of England said "The trouble with Scotland is that it is full of Scots". Famous words that were spoken not only by Longshanks, but by every conquering Englishman who set foot on Scottish soil. It was now 1746, and these same words were again being echoed by these gentlemen, albeit in a different sentence, but basically saying the same thing.

5 months passed and it was decided that the hunt for the Jacobites, (which by this time there were more than likely none left as well as every other Highlander who wasn't even there), should be calmed down and this is when the Prince made his escape back to France. In London they celebrated the defeat of the Highland people once and for all, and the German composer Handel wrote one of his most famous works 'See the conquering hero come' - referring to The Duke of Cumberland.

The Highland people were wiped out. Over the coming years they were cleared out of their homes to make way for their lands to be used for profitable sheep farming. For 4 generations the Highlanders were scattered to the corners of the world - Europe, India, and the New World 'America'. Sold as slaves they worked on the lands in the southern parts of America, and one account even tells us that in Barbados a ship load of Highlanders were traded for 10 tons of sugar.

Their culture was demolished, their native language - Gaelic - was banned and marked as a hanging offence if spoken, the wearing of tartan was also made a hanging offence and even the Bible was not allowed to be learnt in their own language, never mind written.

These times are known to many who live in Scotland as the 'Highland Clearances'. English schools were put in place and the process of conversion began. Finally the English dream of a conquered Scotland was theirs."

David White, son of Moses White, was the ancestor of the founders of the White Furniture Company of Mebane, NC. David told his descendants that his parents were Presbyterian Covenanters in Scotland during the third and final "Covenanter War" in which Britain sent troops to kill members of the Presbyterian Church and destroy their organization. David was old enough to remember the killings followed by the journey to America. David's line preserved the family's coat of arms, and it was displayed on the catalog of the White Furniture Company of Mebane. The coat of arms is listed in Burke's "The General Armory 1884, England, Scotland, and Wales. It was issued to Sir John White, Lord Mayor of London when he was knighted in 1563.

After arriving in America the White brothers (Moses and Hugh) and their families moved to Neshaminy, Pennsylvania where they joined the Dutch Reform Church. The newcomers from "Eerlant" (Ireland) were received by certificate on November 4, 1722. Eventually, the new group became so aggressive that the Dutch withdrew and the church became Presbyterian.

Within a year Hugh White moved to Lancaster County, Pennsylvania where he reared his sons, Hugh, John, Henry, and Moses (II).

Moses White (I) moved his family to New Castle, Delaware, where he became a schoolmaster in Bucks County. He died soon after writing his will on March 12, 1735. He named his children, all of them adults at the time, in his will, presumably in order of birth.

Moses White provided that his estate be divided equally among his six children. Noting that his sons, Joseph, James, and John were unmarried, he provided that if one of them died before marrying, then the deceased's share of his estate would be divided among the survivors.

Like many Scotch-Irish of the period, the children of Moses and Hugh White tended to move south along the Appalachian barrier in search of land. "Of the eight sons of Hugh and Moses White, two made significant contributions to North Carolina and American history," writes Professor Robert Ramsey.

5. iii. JOSEPH WHITE, b. Abt. 1710, Ireland; d. February 11, 1808, Anson County, NC.
6. iv. JAMES WHITE, b. 1711.
- v. MARY WHITE, b. 1713; m. [-- ?--] JONES.
7. vi. JOHN WHITE, b. 1719.

3. HUGH² WHITE (*ADAM*¹)¹ was born Abt. 1671 in Ireland, and died 1741 in Chester, PA. He married JANE [--?--].

Notes for HUGH WHITE:

Hugh and Moses WHITE (brothers) came to Bucks Co., PA, from Ireland (County Antrim) about 1722.

Records of the North and Southampton Dutch Reformed Church at Neshaminy Creek, Bucks Co., PA, show that on November 4, 1722, a group of "newcomers from Ireland" became members. Among those listed were the two WHITE brothers.

In 1725, Hugh and his wife Isabella were living in Donegal Township, Chester Co., PA (later Dauphin Co.). In 1726, Hugh moved to Mount Joy and settled on Little Chickaslunga Creek in the Susquehanna River Valley. He received a land grant of 300 acres on December 20, 1738 in Lancaster Co., PA and probably died shortly after the purchase.

Moses WHITE moved to New Castle, DE and became a school teacher.

Hugh White resided along Little Chiques creek, near the Paxtang road. He left sons Hugh, John Henry, and Moses. One of his sons was Col. Hugh White, of the West Branch valley, in the Revolutionary War. John Tyler lived along Little Chiques creek, near where Myers' stone bridge now is. Jonah Davenport, who crossed the mountains to trade with the Indians at the Ohio as early as 1727, settled on three hundred acres of land near where Bainbridge now is, in 1720. He sold to James Logan, whose heirs sold to the Groffs, Works, and Scotts. The latter sold to James Galbraith. James Cunningham settled near the spring at Donegal church in 1720, taking up several hundred acres of land adjoining the glebe on the north. In 1730 he sold to John Gass. Subsequent owners of the tract, which has been several times divided, include McClelland, McCleery, Kerr, Willson, Cameron, Garber, Hoover. A State hatching house occupied part of the tract. A son of James Cunningham had a distinguished Revolutionary record; he (Col. James Cunningham) commanded the flying camp at the battle of King's Bridge, and at the battle of Long Island. He was a member of the Supreme Executive Council from this county. In later life he was a land surveyor, and laid out the soldiers' lands west of the Allegheny. He died in Lancaster, about 1801.

Hugh White resided along Little Chiques creek, near the Paxtang road, prior to 1726; his sons were Hugh, John, Henry, and Moses. The last-named took patent for 168 acres of land in Mount Joy township in 1741, though he probably had been in possession for many years earlier. He had two sons, Hugh and William; Hugh married the daughter of John Allison, and was a colonel during the Revolution. William took patent for a large tract in Mount Joy in 1741. William Paterson was probably one of the first settlers in Rapho township, taking up about 300 acres in the southern part; his descendants are still in the township

Children of HUGH WHITE and JANE [--?--] are:

4. DAVID³ WHITE (MOSES², ADAM¹) was born Abt. 1695 in Ireland. He married GIERKIE CORNELIUS September 17, 1724 in Old Swede's Church, Wilmington, New Castle County, Delaware, daughter of STEFFAN CORNELIUS and WILHELMINA [--?--].

Notes for DAVID WHITE:

Descendants founded the White Furniture Company in Mebane, NC and preserved the family coat of arms which appeared on the company catalogs.

Founded in 1881, The White Furniture Company attained national prominence in 1906 by supplying furniture to American officers and enlisted men in Panama for the building of the canal. The company gained a reputation as the "South's oldest maker of fine furniture" and survived a massive fire and the Great Depression. What it could not survive was the modern economy. It ended its 104-year run as a family-owned business in 1985 when the Whites sold the company to the Chicago-based Acton Corporation. Eight years later, the company closed for good.

Children of DAVID WHITE and GIERKIE CORNELIUS are:

- i. JOSEPH⁴ WHITE.

Notes for JOSEPH WHITE:

Served as a soldier in Braddock's army and was also in the Canadian expedition of General Benedict Arnold. He was a merchant in Philadelphia.

- ii. MARY WHITE.

Notes for MARY WHITE:

Endured many cruel hardships during the French and Indian War and lost a member of her family to violent death.

- iii. SUSANNAH WHITE.

5. JOSEPH³ WHITE (*MOSES*², *ADAM*¹) was born Abt. 1710 in Ireland, and died February 11, 1808 in Anson County, NC. He married (1) MARGARET LEETH March 31, 1735 in New Castle, Newcastle County, Delaware, daughter of JOHN LEETH. She died Aft. 1748. He married (2) ELIZABETH LEETH. He married (3) ALVARILLA HARPER.

Notes for JOSEPH WHITE:

Joseph White Sr. settled on the Pee Dee river south of the Granville line (N.C. Land Grants, V 246-247). He was a key figure in the development of the Pee Dee settlement and was one of the original Justices of Anson Co. N.C. He probably studied law, for there are several records that read, "I appoint Joseph White as my attorney ..." He probably married and had his first child, Joseph, Jr. before leaving New Castle, DE.

On September 30, 1748 he was appointed a Justice of the Peace of the newly formed Anson Co., NC (NC Colonial Records V. IV pg. 889-951). This appointment meant that he was a member of a Committee Of Peace composed of three Justices who were the law of the land.

Joseph White, Jr. Born, 1735 or 1736, in New Castle, DE (Probably). Died, Jul 1807, in Anson County, NC. Joseph White Jr. was the first child of Joseph Sr. He received numerous grants in Anson County and his name appears many times on the records. In Pennsylvania Marriages Prior to 1790, page 262 there is the entry, "June 8, 1765 Joseph White-Sarah Headley. One of this couple's sons was Henry H. Two great grandsons and at least one great-great grandson were named Headley. Joseph White's will named his children: George, John, Henry, Reuben, Agnes, James, Joel, Jemima, Isaiah, and Zachariah.

In 1749 Joseph was the first high sheriff of Anson County (bearing the title "High Sheriff of Anson"). He was also a Crown justice before the American Revolution. Joseph White was a vestryman of St. George's Parish (Church of England), Anson County. In 1781 Andrew Jackson briefly lived at the homes of Thomas Crawford and Joseph White and assisted in a saddler's trade.

DEED OF GIFT

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA

County Of Anson

December 24, 1794

To all people to whom these presents shall come I, Joseph White, do send greetings. Know ye that I the said Joseph White of the State of North Carolina and the County of Anson in consideration of love, good will, and affection which I have and do bear towards my loving daughter Lydia, of the State of Georgia and the county of Greene, have given and granted a negro girl by the name of Diner, about fifteen years old, and by these presents do freely give and grant unto the said Lydia Jones, her heirs, executors, administrations and assigns forever.

Signed with my own hand this 24th day of December 1794.

History of Anson County, NC

Anson County was named in honor of British Admiral Lord George Anson, a First Lord of the Admiralty. He commanded the vessel which brought Princess Charlotte of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, Germany, to her future husband King George III. Germans emigrated to the area around Anson County, as did many settlers from the British Isles, Africa, and Moravia. In 1748 or 1749 Anson County was formed from Bladen County and, at the time, it reached all the way to the Mississippi River.

Petition dated October 9, 1769.

"Mr. Speaker and Gen't of the Assembly.

Humbly Showeth:

That the Province in General labour under general grievances, and the western part thereof under particular ones; which we not only see, but very sensibly feel, being crouch'd beneath our sufferings and notwithstanding our sacred privileges, have too long yielded ourselves slaves to remorseless oppression. - Permit us to conceive it to be our inviolable right to make known our grievances, and to petition for redress as appears in the Bill of Rights pass'd in the reign of King Charles the first, as well as the Act of Settlement of the Crown of the Revolution. We therefore beg leave at the Act of the Settlement of the Crown of the Revolution. We therefore beg leave to lay before you a specimen thereof that your compassionate endeavors may tend to the relief of your injured Constituents, whose distressed condition call aloud for aid. The alarming cries of the oppressed possibly may reach your ears; but without your zeal how they shall ascend the throne - how relentless is the breast without sympathy, the heart that cannot bleed on a view of our calamity; to see tenderness removed, cruelty stepping in; and all our liberties and privileges invaded and abridg'd (by as it were) domesticks; who are conscious of their guilt and void of remorse. - O how darling! how relentless whilst impending Judgements loudly threaten and gaze upon them, with every emblem of merited destruction. A few of the many grievances are as follows, (viz't)

1. That the poor inhabitants in general are much oppress'd by reason of the disproportionate Taxes, and those of the western Counties in particular; as they are generally in mean circumstances.
2. That no method is prescribed by law for the payment of the taxes of the Western Counties in produce (in lieu of a currency) as in other Counties within this Province to the Peoples great oppression.
3. That Lawyers, Clerks, and other petitioners; in place of being obsequious Servants for the Country's use, are become a nuisance, as the business of the people is often transacted without the least degree of fairness, the intention of the law evaded, exorbitant fees extorted, and the sufferers left to mourn under their oppressions.
4. That an Attorney should have it in his power, either for the sake of ease or interest, or to gratify their malevolence and spite, or commence suits to what courts he pleases, however inconvenient it may be to the Defendants; is a very great oppression.
5. That all unlawful fees taken in Indictment, where the Defendant is acquitted by his Country (however customary it may be) is an oppression.
6. That Lawyers, Clerks, and others, extorting more fees than is intended by law; is also an oppression.
7. That the violation of the King's Instructions to his Delegates, their artfulness in concealing the same from him; and the great injury the People thereby sustains: is a manifest oppression.

And for remedy whereof, we take the freedom to recommend the following mode of redress, not doubting audience and acceptance which will not only tend to our relief, but command prayers at a duty from your humble Petitioners.

1. That at all elections each suffrage be given by Ticket & Ballot.
2. That the mode of Taxation be altered, and each person pay in proportion to the proffits arising from his Estate.
3. That no future tax be laid in Money, until a currency is made.
4. That there may be established a Western as well as a Northern and Southern District, and a Treasurer for the same.
5. That when a currency is made it may be let out by a loan office (on land security) and a Treasurer for the same
6. That all debts above 60s (shillings) and under 10 pounds be tried and determined without lawyers, by a jury of six freeholders, impaneled by a Justice, and that their verdict be enter'd by the said Justice, and be a final judgement.
7. That the Chief Justice have no perquisites, but a Salary only.
8. That Clerks be restricted in respect to fees, costs, and other things within the course of their office.
9. That Lawyers be effectively Barr'd from exacting and extorting fees.
10. That all doubts may be removed in respect to the payment of fees and costs on Indictments whereas the Defendant is not found guilty by the jury, and therefore acquitted.
11. That the Assembly make known the Remonstrance to the King, the conduct of the cruel and oppressive Receiver of the Quit Rents, for omitting the customary easie and effectual method of collecting by distress, and pursuing the expensive mode of commencing suits in the most distant Courts.

12. That the Assembly in like manner make known that the Governor and Council fo frequently grant lands to as many as they think proper without regard to Head Rights, notwithstanding the contrariety of his Majesties instructions, by which means immense sums has been collected, and numerous Patents granted, for much of the most fertile lands in this Province, that is yet uninhabited and cultivated, environed by great numbers of poor people who are necessitated to toil in the cultivation of bad Lands whereon they hardly can subsist, who are thereby deprived of His Majesties liberality and Bounty nor is there the least regard paid to the cultivation clause in said Patent mentioned, as many of the said Council as well as their friends and favorites enjoy large quantities of Lands under the above-mentioned circumstances.

13. That the Assembly communicates in like manner the Violation of His Majesties Instructions respecting the Land Office by the Governor and Council, and of their own rules, customs and orders. If it be sufficiently proved, that after they had granted Warrants for some Tracts of Land, and that the same was in due time suvey'd and returned and the Patent fees timely paid into the said office; and that if a private Council was called to avoid spectators, and peremptory orders made that Patents should not be granted; and Warrants by their orders arbitrarily to have been issued in the names of other Persons for the same Lands, and if when intreated by a solicitor they refus'd to render so much as a reason for their so doing, or to refund any part of the money paid by them extorted.

14. That some method may be pointed out that every Improvement on Lands in any of the Proprietors part be proved when begun, by whom, and every sale made, that the eldest may have the preference of at least 300 acres.

15. That all taxes in the following Counties be paid as in other Counties in the Province (i.e.) in the produce of the County and that warehouses be erected as follows (viz), In Anson County at Isom Haleys Ferry Landing on PeeDee River, Rowan and Orange at Cambleton in Cumberland County, Mecklenburg at ___?___ on the Catawba River, and in Tryon County at ___?___ on ___?___ River.

16. That every denomination of People may marry according to their respective mode Ceremony and customs after due publication or License.

17. That Doc't Benjamin Franklin or some other known patriot be appointed agent, to represent the unhappy state of this Province to his Majesty, and to solicit the several Boards in England.

17. STEPHENUS (STEPHEN)⁴ WHITE (DAVID³, MOSES², ADAM¹) was born July 19, 1725, and died 1818. He married ANN ROSS. She was born 1734 in Willmington, Delaware, and died 1818 in Alamance County, NC.

Notes for STEPHENUS (STEPHEN) WHITE:

Move from Pennsylvania to Chatham County, NC. They chose North Carolina because of a favorable recommendation of the land by Stephen's brother Charles (Carolus), who had already settled there. Stephen White was a shoemaker for high society women, having been trained in that trade by a skilled craftsman near Philadelphia.

There was no market for high fashion shoes and no Presbyterian church and being unhappy with his Carolina home, he and his family decided to return to Philadelphia. However they got no further than the Hawfields section of North Carolina. Joseph Freeland persuaded them to remain near him in the Hawfields. Stephen bought an excellent tract of land for the cost of his wagon. This place ultimately became the property of the heirs of David Kerr and was near Back Creek, two and one half miles east of Graham, NC.

Stephen and Ann were Presbyterians. His will was written January 6, 1812 and probated August 1818 in Orange County, NC. Stephen and Ann are both buried at Haw Presbyterian Church Cemetery in Mebane, NC. On Ann's cemetery marker it reads: "Relative of Betsy Ross".

- iii. JAMES E. WHITE.
- iv. JESSE WHITE.

- v. SARAH WHITE.
- vi. LYDIA WHITE.

22. DAVID⁴ WHITE (JOSEPH³, MOSES², ADAM¹) was born 1737 in Pennsylvania. He married SARAH WILLIAMS. She was born 1745 in Georgia.

Notes for DAVID WHITE:

His will was recorded in the old Spanish records of Baton Rouge, Louisiana. In the first sentence of the will, he states that he is the legitimate son of Joseph White and Margaret Leeth. After his death, an attempt was made to break this will and in the records of the trial, there is a sworn deposition of John White of Anson County, North Carolina who identifies himself as a brother of David.

Just before the birth of daughter Unity, he left his family in Anson County and became an Indian Trader in Georgia. Eventually, he took up land in New Feliciana Parish, Louisiana, a part of Spanish West Florida. On August 16, 1794, he prepared his will, specifying that his entire estate be given to Sybil Turnbull, daughter of his good friend John Turnbull, now deceased. The will was sealed and given to the Spanish authorities at the "Fort and District of Baton Rouge" on August 21, 1794 for safekeeping until his death. He stated that he was "an Englishman and a native of North America," then he and the witnesses he had brought along signed "the closed folder."

All of his family thought he was dead except his brother John, who took up his trail and found him in Louisiana. Later, his sons Joseph and William visited their father. David sent an invitation to Sarah through the sons to bring the family, but Sarah did not respond, and David did not change his will.

The will was probated in 1809, and Sybil inherited. David's wife sued, and the court ruled against her. She tried again, and was again unsuccessful.

Children of DAVID WHITE and SARAH WILLIAMS are:

- i. MARGARET⁵ WHITE, b. 1760; m. CHRISTOPHER WILLIAMS.
- ii. WILLIAM WHITE, b. 1762; d. February 02, 1818, Warren County, GA; m. SARAH WIGGINS.

Notes for WILLIAM WHITE:

Our William took care of his Uncle William at his house. Ailing in health, Uncle William Bought 40 acres from Peter Perkins. To aide in his uncle's care, William bought a slave girl, Rachel, from Peter Perkins. William inherited the 40 acres from his Uncle William.

On record, in Warren County, Georgia, can be found, William White and Sarah Wiggins. At the death of William in 1818, the name of his wife, Sarah, did not appear in his will. Could she have died before this time ?

In Warren County, Georgia, the "non-cupative" or death bed will of William White was recorded February 9, 1818 which lists: "sons: Green, Austin, Timothy, Matthew, William Daughters: Nancy, Peggy, Unity, Betsy.

Witnessed and signed by - J. Darden, Sr. and D. Dennis."

We know, however, that Nancy, Peggy, and Betsy were his sisters.

It is believed that William and Sarah's children remained in Warren County, Georgia until time to start lives of their own. Some of their marriages can be found in Warren County records.

- iii. JOSEPH WHITE, b. 1764.
- 61. iv. UNITY WHITE, b. 1770; d. February 14, 1856, Meriwether County, GA.

23. JOSEPH⁴ WHITE, JR. (JOSEPH³, MOSES², ADAM¹)³ was born 1737 in New Castle, DE, and died July 1807 in Anson County, NC. He married SARAH HEADLEY June 10, 1765 in Churchville, Bucks County, PA⁴. She was born January 02, 1738 in Bucks County, PA.

Notes for JOSEPH WHITE, JR.:

Received numerous grants of land in Anson County, NC. His name appears in the public records there 300 times. He was a planter of means. He died about a year before his father. He was a planter, as was his father, each owning slaves to produce cotton and possibly tobacco on several tracts of land that seldom adjoined their home tract.

(Info from Will of Joseph White)

Will made 1805; proven 1807, Anson Co. Wife named Sarah_____.

Sons: Joseph, George, John, Henry, Reuben, James, Joel, Isiah, and Zachariah.

Daus: Agnes (married a Harrell).

Jemima (married a Shepherd/Shepperd).

Names grandsons Joseph and Joel, sons of Joel White.

Says his son Joseph is living in Georgia with three sons and three daus (not named, but left an inheritance to them).

Notes for SARAH HEADLEY:

Sarah Headley is listed by some as the daughter of John Headley b 1707 and Hannah Bidgood and, if so, the John Headley listed in NC is likely a brother or cousin.

Joseph White's marriage (license date) to Sarah Headley is on a list furnished by the Presbyterian Archives in Philadelphia, PA. The Presbyterian Synods of both Philadelphia and New York furnished travelling missionaries for North Carolina from 1755 to 1770 when the state was given its own Presbytery. Churchville is about 5 miles southeast of Neshaminy.

Child of DAVID WHITE and REBECCA ROBERTSON is:

- i. ISAAC⁵ WHITE, b. November 18, 1789, Augusta County, VA; d. May 10, 1865, Blount County, TN.

35. ISAAC⁴ WHITE, JR. (ISAAC³, HUGH², ADAM¹)^{7,8} was born June 04, 1752 in Kent County, DE, and died August 18, 1819 in Jonesboro, Washington County, TN. He married SARAH VAUGHN October 12, 1775. She was born 1755 in Hanover County, VA, and died June 15, 1844.

Notes for ISAAC WHITE, JR.:

Descendants state that Issac married his first cousin, Sarah Lawson. Also, Issac had several sons.

He moved his family from Guilford Co. NC just after the Battle of Guilford in the last year of the Revolution in 1782. They were among the first families arriving in Washington County, Tennessee settling on the Fall Branch of Horse Creek. They are listed in the East Tennessee Historical Society's First Families of Tennessee Certificate Application File #9842-1 20 Dec 1996.

On August 7, 1792, he purchased 315 acres on Horse Creek from William Magbee, Sr. for 160 pounds. He also owned about 200 acres in Sullivan County, TN.

He served Washington County as a Justice of the Peace and a tax collector, along with tilling his farm and raising his family of 12 children.

As evidenced by his will, he also was a slaveholder. His will may be viewed on the Washington County, TN US Gen Web project.

About 1818 he became ill with the dropsy and gravel, before his death on August 18, 1819. He was laid to rest on his farm in the White family cemetery where his memorial still lies, along with many of his children and descendants.

Isaac White, born in 1752 in Delaware, came into East Tennessee in the late 1700s and was captain of the Sullivan County, TN militia, seeing action at King's Mountain in 1780. His son, Richard White (b. 1786) moved to Washington County, TN where he and his descendants, including William S. White, were active in county affairs.

40. JEAN⁴ WHITE (WILLIAM³, HUGH², ADAM¹) was born Abt. 1742, and died February 04, 1804. She married MAJOR ROBERT CRAWFORD, JR. May 1762, son of COL. ROBERT CRAWFORD. He was born 1728 in Ireland, and died October 05, 1801 in Lancaster County, PA.

Notes for JEAN WHITE:

George Washington stayed in their home May 27th through May 28th in 1791.

Notes for MAJOR ROBERT CRAWFORD, JR.:

Robert Crawford was born in Pennsylvania, in 1728 and died in the Waxhaws October 5, 1801. He was interred in the old Waxhaw graveyard. His tombstone bearing on one side the inscription, Major Robert Crawford, died October 5, 1801, was born 1728. He was a gallant and distinguished officer in the Revolutionary War and is said to have furnished a company at his own expense. His Commission was preserved for many years by his grand daughter, Mrs. George McCottery Witherspoon, of Lancaster, SC, but was finally lost during Sherman's raid in 1865. History of the Presbyterian Church of South Carolina, Reverend George Howe, D. D. Volume 1, page 54 says: Many of the Waxhaw men were numbered among the patriots of the Revolution. Besides Major, afterwards General and subsequently Governor, Wm. R. Davie, there were Major Robert Crawford, etc.: Again in Vol. II Page 694, Dr. Howe mentions Major Crawford as being "conspicuous in the time of the Revolution, etc." He is mentioned on page 348 of "Johnson's Traditions", quoting from a letter from Jas. F. White, which says, "Major Crawford was with Sumter at the time of his defeat." He is also mentioned In Wheeler's History of North Carolina, Page 190 and there are also cards, etc., in the office of the Historical Commission at Columbia, S.C. which shows conclusively that he was a Captain and then a Major in the Revolutionary War.

In Wheelers Reminiscences page 286, Major Crawford was granted 620 acres of land in the Waxhaws under date of February 9, 1775. It seems that the Governor of N.C. had formerly granted this tract to Andrew Pickens. See Vol. II, Page 240 State Records in office of Secretary of State referring again to Col. John Crawford, Judge G. Witherspoon, who were of the opinion that they came from Ireland that that Robert was born in Ireland.

President George Washington was a guest in Robert's home May 27-28 1791.

Milton, Rutherford County, Tenn.

Dear Children,

I adress you a few lines in much love but in a disconsolate state of mind. The Lords doings is right. Behold, he taketh away, who can hinder him? Who will say unto him, what doesn't thou? Mr. Orr died on the 5th inst. and was buried at the McKnight burying ground at 4 o'clock. P.M. the 6th he was taken very suddenly on the the morning of the 2nd of June 56 with hearth, I was asleep but his fall wakened me. I helped him in bed. A distressing pain in the back nausia and insanity followed. For three week we dispared of his recovery. but it pleased an all wise Providence to give him some strength.. though he was very helpless and suffered at times greatly with his back untill about the first part of June 57. He was struck with apoplexy. He was paralyzed in the left side. He could speak only a mon--ylable distinctly. In eight or ten days he recovered so that he could talk. He then often a stand of a few days gradually sunk until his death. I am living with William he moved us here in 54. William bought the Dill farm east of where we were living when you were here. There family is well. I am tolerbly well. I don't know where to direct a letter to Hardy. You will write to him for me and press him to write to me. Write to me and come to see us soon. I remain your affectionate mother until death.

Mother,

I take my pen to give you a few items. Our family is well at this tim. uncle Ben. Knoxs family is in usual healt. Rev. J. Alexanders family is still sorely afflicted. the old man has suffered as much this summer as he ever has with his eys. old Mrs. Rey is still living and is very weak and helpless though she is not suffering as she did in the summer. Summar ey's are geting a little better he can see to get about in the neigbourhood by himself. Our neigbourhood has been blest with good health except a fiew cases chills and billows feaver. We have had no deaths within the neigbourhood. The country betwen here and Woodbury and west of us have suffered greatly principlly with tiaphiod feavor and several deaths. None of your acquaintence that I have heard of except Esq. Barton seign near the time you left. Wm. has finised his mile of pike and gets the premium for the best & prettiest pike between Murfressborroug and Anition. Hugh is working for his pa. John & Bettie are going to school. Mary staying at home we have made and I wove near seventy yard of cloath this summer and fall. Spence money sells here for twenty scents in the dollar. Wm. does not wish to take that he has laid youn away with a hundred and 16 dol. of his. Your cubboard is not sold yet. I have named it to almost every lady that has been here they all who need prefse (preserves) safes then has been but one that wants it. You will wrote the least you will take. Mr. Bradshaw still preaches her occasionally. His health is not good. There was a protracted meating heald at the church there was 5 or 6 converts. Dr. Bellbro and his wife two of Cranors children and Julia Warren.

Ben Wetherspoons are not satisfied. Elec. was down a week or so ago they ware all well he took the saddle. You recolect Billy Lewis, Winfry Wetherspoon brother in law whose wife died last winter him and Eugenia Celton are maried they have only sixteen children to begin with. John talks of going down a christmass. Wm. says he will try to get some money and send you on that he is owing you. It is growing late in the night and I must close my letter. The children sends theur love to you Iredell and family. You & Iredell except our best wishes through life and fore eternity.

61. UNITY⁵ WHITE (DAVID⁴, JOSEPH³, MOSES², ADAM¹)^{21,22,23} was born 1770, and died February 14, 1856 in Meriwether County, GA. She married JOHN PEAVY 1789. He was born 1766 in Orange County, GA.

Notes for UNITY WHITE:

Unity's husband, John Peavy was dead by 1806 when Unity is listed on the tax digest between 1806 and 1812 in Green Co. Ga. paying taxes on 28 acres of land.

This land was bought under the name of her son, David, who was a child at the time. (why ? and have found no deed showing when the land was sold.)

Unfortunately, neither Unity nor John is shown on the 1805 land lottery for GA. Unity did sign up when she was in Jasper County. We know John was in Wilkes County (in the part that was cut off into Warren.) However, I have found no deeds or other records that would help us determine when he was still alive in Warren or in Green. Unity may have gone to Greene after his death. If so, why?

Unity granted Power of Attorney to her son-in-law William Lawrence in Green County, GA in 1816 because she was moving and needed someone to settle her affairs. On March 5, 1821, she granted Power of Attorney to her son Allen Peavy to enable him to collect her inheritance from the estate of her father David White. He had died in Louisiana in 1809. Her sister Margaret Thrower granted a like Power of Attorney to Allen Peavy just seven days later on March 12, 1821.

In 1855, Unity filed an Affidavit in Meriwether County, GA stating that Sarah Davidson of Pike County, GA widow of the Revolutionary soldier Joseph Davidson, was in fact the sister of Unity's late husband. This Joseph Davidson, may have been the same man, who in 1783, witnessed the sale of land to Joseph Peavy in Orange Co, N.C. He was involved in the land transactions in Wilkes County, GA. Unity White Peavy died in Meriwether County, GA on Jan 14, 1856 and the notice of her death was printed in the Jan 31, 1856 issue of the Southern Christian Advocate, a Methodist Publication. Her Obituary stated that she had been brought from her birthplace in North Carolina by her parents to Warren County, GA. That's where she married John Peavy.

From several sources, we are able to estimate that she was born in 1770 in North Carolina and that she was probably married in 1789 or 1790.

Child of UNITY WHITE and JOHN PEAVY is:

134. i. [--?--]⁶ PEAVY.

62. ZACHARIAH⁵ WHITE (JOSEPH⁴, JOSEPH³, MOSES², ADAM¹) was born 1765, and died 1851 in Anson County, NC. He married SUSANNAH BENSON 1793 in North Carolina, daughter of WILLIAM BENSON. She was born 1777.

Notes for ZACHARIAH WHITE:

64. HENRY H.⁵ WHITE (JOSEPH⁴, JOSEPH³, MOSES², ADAM¹) was born 1768 in Anson County, NC, and died 1830 in Perry County, TN. He married HANNAH RUSHING 1809 in Anson County, NC, daughter of PHILLIP RUSHING and HANNAH [--?--]. She was born 1770 in Anson County, NC, and died 1850 in Perry County, TN.

Notes for HENRY H. WHITE:

Henry H. White owned extensive tracts of land in Anson County and was a planter of means.

Henry H. White, Sr. Born, circa 1768, in Anson County, N.C. Died, 1830, in Perry County, TN, was the third son of Joseph, Jr. and Sarah Headley. He was a shrewd, hardworking, no nonsense, money making planter. Henry held many grants in Anson County and purchased more. Sometime in the early 1780s, Henry married a neighborhood girl Hannah Rushing. She was probably the daughter of Philip Rushing whose land adjoined the White's in Anson County. She named two of her sons after her brothers, William H. and Burrell W. Rushing. Henry had ten sons and four daughters.

The turn of the century ushered in troubled and uneasy times for the young nation and the Whites. In 1807 and 1808, the patriarchs of the family, Joseph Jr. and Joseph Sr. died, leaving no single authority figure to influence all family units. However, the "clan" instinct governed their decisions and movements then and in following generations. The White family leaders were faced with a pressing problem. North Carolina had become "fully settled." There was no more land available for their growing families. Tennessee provided a solution. It was attached to and governed by North Carolina at that time. The Indian problem had been dealt with by Gen. Andrew Jackson and Gen. James White, a cousin. It would mean leaving their homes, but if their sons and daughters must move to have their chance, Ma and Pa and some of the relatives would go with them.

Perry County, TN opened for settlement about 1819 or 1820 and several of the White Families moved there. The 1820 census lists the families of Henry, Daniel, two Davids, Joel, Robert, Jim and Benjamin White. By 1830, the Perry County Census listed 21 White families.

Henry's brother, Joel White, also died in Perry County then his wife and children move on to Nacogdoches in East Texas. Henry's son, Henry, Jr., went to another county in East Texas.

66. AGNES⁵ WHITE (JOSEPH⁴, JOSEPH³, MOSES², ADAM¹) was born 1771. She married JAMES HARRELL²⁴ Abt. 1790 in Anson County, NC. He was born in Jasper County, GA.

Notes for JAMES HARRELL:

James Harrell was in Anson County, NC from about 1796 to 1818 who appears beside Zachariah and Jedediah White on the 1800 census, at age 26-45, with a wife 16-25 and 2 sons and 2 daughters, all <10. He is believed to have married Agnes White ~1790. In 1810 James was enumerated on the same page as Zachariah Harrell, who was still in Anson County in 1820; both had large families in 1810. In 1817 (Anson Co NC DB S, p. 432) James and Isaac Harrell sold property on both sides of Lane's Creek adjoining Reuben Harrell to Solomon Marsh, father of the James Marsh who became the guardian of Simon Harrell's minor children in Sumter County, GA from 1857-1868. James Harrell then moved to Jasper County, GA, where he remarried in 1821 and died in 1823. (Samuel Harrell, second son of R. S. Simon Harrell, also moved to Jasper Co GA in 1818).

Notes for ELIZABETH B. WHITE:

Asa Moore and Elizabeth B. White were married on September 9, 1845. This marriage date is given in Asa's bible which is still in existence and is owned by Asa's great-grandson, Draydon (Bo) Moore of Nacogdoches, TX; however, it does not give the place of marriage, and no additional marriage record has ever been found. Asa was 30 years old when he was married, and his bride was around 17. This has led some to speculate that he may have been married before. Asa and Elizabeth were married for 21 years, and in 1866, she died in childbirth. So far as we know, Asa Moore never married again.

Elizabeth B. WHITE was born ca 1826-1828 in TN, probably in Perry Co, TN where her parents had moved in the early 1820s, along with other members of the WHITE family. Her parents were Joel WHITE and Sarah ????, both born in NC. Joel's parents were Joseph WHITE, Jr. and Sarah HEADLEY of Anson Co, NC. Joseph's father was Joseph WHITE, Jr. and he was the son of the immigrant, Moses WHITE, b. Scotland or Ireland, ca 1680, came to Delaware ca 1720, taught school and died in New Castle, DE ca 1730.

72. JOHN⁵ WHITE (MOSES⁴, MOSES³, HUGH², ADAM¹) was born Abt. 1744. He married CELIA CERENE COLLETT.

Child of JOHN WHITE and CELIA COLLETT is:

152. i. JONAS⁶ WHITE.

73. GENERAL JAMES⁵ WHITE (MOSES⁴, MOSES³, HUGH², ADAM¹) was born August 08, 1747 in Rowan County, NC, and died August 14, 1822 in Knox County, TN. He married MARY LAWSON April 14, 1770 in Rowan County, NC, daughter of HUGH LAWSON and MARY MOORE. She was born 1742 in Rowan County, NC, and died March 10, 1819 in Knox County, TN.

Notes for GENERAL JAMES WHITE:

"Revolutionary hero and the founder of Knoxville General James White had very strong Scotch-Irish blood in his veins. His people - of the Campbell clan - had originally lived at Inveraray and Lochgoilhead in Argyllshire on the western lowlands of Scotland and it was his grandfather Moses White who moved to County Londonderry with his wife Mary Campbell in the later part of the 17th century.

They had seven children, one of them Moses White, Jr. (James White's father), who was to leave Ireland in 1741 and settle in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. Moses White, Jr. married Mary McConnell and they moved to Iredell (Rowan County) in North Carolina. James was the fourth of their six children. He married Mary Lawson from North Carolina and they had three sons and four daughters.

In the Revolutionary War James White captained the North Carolina militia and it was this service which entitled him to a grant of land which he eventually was to select along the banks of the Holston River, now the Tennessee River, which flows through Knoxville. However, before the final settlement he spent several years in Virginia and was a member of the general assembly of the state of Franklin which met in Jonesboro and was speaker of the senate.

When White and his family first moved to the Holston River basin in 1785 his home was a modest log cabin with an adjoining turnip patch, but a year later he had a two-story blockhouse built, to be known as White's Fort. Settlers' homes needed to be well fortified in those days due to the threats from marauding Cherokee Indians and White's Fort came under attack on numerous occasions.

White became a highly influential man in this part of the frontier: in 1789 he was a representative from Hawkins County in the legislature of North Carolina and was a member of the convention which ratified the constitution of the United States.

In 1790, during the organization of the territory of the United States south of the Ohio River by Governor William Blount, White was appointed Major of the militia and justice of the peace of Hawkins County. He was involved with Blount in talks with the Cherokee Indians which led to the signing of the Holston Treaty on July 2, 1791. This authorized the purchase of all the lands of present-day Knoxville and the surrounding Knox County from the Indians - an area of some 1,260 square miles.

In October, 1791, to White, was given the task of laying out Knoxville as a proper settlement and it was agreed to name it in honor of General Henry Knox, the Secretary of War, a man of County Down pedigree. Knoxville was then in a thicket of brushwood and grapevines, except a small portion in front of the river where all the business was done.

The original 64 lots of land, arranged by White's son-in-law and surveyor Charles McClung, were chosen by lottery at a price of eight dollars for each half-acre. Demand by the incoming settlers was brisk - the great city of Knoxville was indeed taking shape with an original 10 streets.

White was promoted to lieutenant colonel commandant in the militia and it was his obvious gifts of sympathy, understanding, patience, and tact which earned him the chairmanship of the court of pleas and quarter sessions, the body appointed to fairly monitor the allocation of land lots.

The conflict between the impetuous settlers and the Indian community continued, but White succeeded in keeping a cool head and built up a trust with the Indian tribesmen. His half-sister, wife of Joseph Wilson, and her children were captured by Creek Indians in Sumner County in middle Tennessee, but after great effort, White succeeded in ransoming all of them. An Indian chief said that "the Great Spirit" aided in the rescue of the last little Wilson girl because of James White's goodness.

In another incident, Governor Blount despatched James White to disperse a large force of settlers ready to march upon Indian settlements and it took much dialogue before the tension was defused. White did help to thwart attacks on Knoxville by the Cherokee and Creek tribes - he stood by the defense of his people at all times.

White later became a brigadier general in the militia and he helped negotiate the treaty with the Cherokees whereby the Indians received 5,000 dollars and an annuity of 1,000 dollars for their lands. In the Creek War he led 850 men from Tennessee to Alabama to help Andrew Jackson in the fight against the Indians.

James White was a staunch Presbyterian and was a founding elder of Lebanon in the Fork Presbyterian Church, the first church organized in the Knoxville region. He was also a founding elder of First Knoxville Presbyterian Church, giving over his turnip patch for the Church building and the adjoining cemetery. He also gave the land for the first non-sectarian college west of the Appalachians, Blount College. Blount College later became the University of Tennessee, one of the nation's oldest institutions of higher education.

He was a member of the Territorial House of Representatives and when Tennessee was being prepared for admission into the Union as a state he was the Knox County member of the constitutional convention. He served several terms as state senator and senate speaker.

White and his wife Mary are buried in the First Presbyterian cemetery and a tribute pens the appropriate words: "Of James White as a soldier, citizen, official, and Christian nothing needs to be added to the bare record of his services to his home, country, and church."

The Knoxville Register of August 21, 1821, in its obituary of General James White, said that in civil, military, and ecclesiastical concerns he had taken a distinguished part. "He has acquitted himself with fidelity and usefulness, in the numerous public functions in which he has been called upon to act. This town, particularly, has cause to remember him with gratitude and veneration. He was its founder and patron and ever watched over its interests with the affection of a parent."

Notes for CAPTAIN SAMUEL PEDEN:

Samuel was born 1754 in Ireland, the son of John Peden and Margaret McDill. Samuel came with his family to South Carolina four years before the Revolution and was living in the Spartanburg District when he enlisted in service in 1775. He received land - Plat Folder 1483 - on December 11, 1772 in Craven County, South Carolina, on a small branch of the water of the Enorre River on land adjoining Herman Dildinas. This land was surveyed on April 16, 1773.

He enlisted under the service of Captain Andrew Barry on several occasions and was at Cow Pens, King's Mountain and in the Battle of the Blackstocks. He was discharged the last time in March 1781 on the Catawaba River because of pains in his limbs. Parts of four years he gave to the Revolutionary War. He volunteered as a private and came out a Captain.

After the Revolution Samuel married Kathernie White, the daughter of Moses White II (-1784) and Mary McConnell. His pension application states that they lived in North Carolina for three years.

They moved to Fairview, SC, where Samuel was one of the founding elders of Fairview Presbyterian Church which was founded in the fall of 1786 and accepted by the Presbytery of South Carolina in April 1787. The family lived in this area where Samuel farmed and was a blacksmith.

In 1818 Samuel left Fairview with several of his children and went to Fayette County, AL where he lived until 1834 when he moved to Kemper County, MS.

On December 1, 1832, Fayette County, AL, Samuel applied for a pension which was allowed and later paid to his widow, Mrs. Margaret Peden who stated in 1836 that she was his widow. The date and place of her marriage to Captain Samuel Paden is not listed.

Samuel was one of the founders of the Smyrna Presbyterian Church in Kemper County, MS. Samuel died December 26, 1835 and is buried in the Smyrna Presbyterian Cemetery, Kemper County, MS. His grave is reported to be the first one dug in the cemetery.

Notes for THOMAS WHITE:

Succeeded his father in the operation of White's Mill.

In the Harmony Wylies Mill Club territory on the west bank of Fishing Creek is located a flourishing town called Lando, so named in honor of Captains Lane and Dodson. The former the first conductor and the latter the first superintendent of the Seaboard Air Line Railway.

The first settlers in Lando, SC were a family by the name of White, who emigrated from Pennsylvania and settled at Fishing Creek. A grists mill was built and called White's Mill.

After the surrender at Charleston in April 1780, the Tories formed small squadrons and entered into general plunder. Lieutenant Turnbull who was in command of the forces at Rocky Creek sent Colonel Huck to establish a post at White's Mill. These troops scoured the country plundering farms, gathering in corn and wheat and storing it in the mill as supplies for the troops.

These acts and others aroused the Patriots and Captain McClure and Colonel Lacey collected a force of men with the determination to run Huck out of the country. Colonel Bill Hill joined him for an attack July 1 at White's Mill. About sun down they arrived there only to find the place evacuated. Undaunted they pursued Huck with 300 men. Huck had gone to Brattonville. Later a battle was fought there and Huck was found dead. After this the neighborhood had comparative quietness.

The White's owned this mill until after the Revolution. In the early part of the eighteenth century, it fell to Captain Eaves. After the Civil War, Eaves died and the old plantation, the grists mill, and a saw mill was sold to Alexander Williford. On June 28, 1880, F. H. Barber bought the mill and the plantation of 172 acres for $6000. It was here that F. H. Barber organized the Fishing Creek Manufacturing Company with a capital stock of $100,000.

Some of the citizens of this section owning stock in this mill were-John Lyle, Madison Hefley, Captain J. A. Thomas, John Dickey, Sr., and his son, J. C. Dickey. The Walkers and Dickeys and probably others loaned money to Mr. Barber to the amount of several thousand dollars.

A post office was established here and was known as Factory Post Office. A few stores soon sprang up in the neighborhood. The mill owned a store and the first manager was John Lyle with W. E. Dickey as clerk. Later managers were: W. E. Dickey, C. B. Betts, D. D. Chambers, Joe Hollis, W. W. Fennell.

D. D. Chambers was manager for 8 years and finally moved his family there and lived there for 8 years. Three of his children were born here. One of our members, Mrs. Ben Nunnery, was born here.

Another large mercantile establishment in Lando was owned by the Robinson Brothers, James Marion Robinson and Sidney C. Robinson. The latter is the father of Mrs. J. N. Whitesides, another club member.

This property was purchased from John B. Fudge and J. D. Blanks who lived there. A large two storied structure was erected for the store and later the Robinson brothers built homes and moved their families there.

They carried a big line of merchandise including, dry goods, groceries, hardware, wagons, coffins, etc. They also had a millinery department. Some of the milliners were Miss Lula Vincent and Miss Lettie

Barber.

In addition to the mill trade, Robinson Brothers carried on an extensive credit business with the farmers in the surrounding country.

When this store was at the height of its prosperity, a destructive fire completely destroyed the building and practically all of the stock of goods.

Sometime later the store was rebuilt where the Manetta Mills Store now stands. Mr. Sidney Robinson moved back to his country home near Edgemoor. James Robinson remained here and continued the business until his death. The property was then sold to B. D. Heath.

Some of the boys who clerked in Robinson Brother's Store afterwards became prominent men. Wallace Fennell came to this store when a boy of fourteen, was taken in as a clerk and as a member of the family. Wallace was none other than Dr. W. W. Fennell, one of the best surgeons in this state and founder of the Fennell Hospital of Rock Hill. Another fine young man clerked in this store, he is now Rev. A. S. Rogers, DD, pastor of ARP Church of Rock Hill. Other clerks were W. E. Dickey, Thomas Orr and John White. John White married Miss Mary Stroud and lived in an apartment above the store.

In 1886 W. E. Dickey erected a store near Lando and continued in business until he moved to Edgemoor in 1889.

Notes for MARY BOYKIN MILLER:

Mary Boykin Miller Chesnut is one of South Carolina's greatest women from the Civil War period. She is recognized for her A Diary from Dixie, which is her first-hand account of South Carolina before, during and after the Civil War.

Mary Boykin Miller Chesnut, the eldest child in her family, was born on March 31, 1823 in Statesboro, S.C. to Mary Boykin and Stephen Decatur Miller. He was an U.S. Congressman and Senator, and served as governor of S.C. in 1826. At the age of thirteen, Chesnut was sent to a French boarding school in Charleston. At the age of fourteen, she fell in love with James Chesnut, Jr., who was a son of a wealthy landowner. They were married on April 23, 1840, and chose to live near Camden on a plantation called Mulberry the plantation of the Chesnut family. It was owned by James's grandparents, who lived there along with his parents and two of his sisters.

Mulberry was a beautiful place to live. It stood above the Wateree River a few miles from the town of Camden (population less than 1,000). A mile-long, oak-tree-lined road led from the river dock to the large plantation house. The house had been built some twenty years earlier, but the owner had intended it to survive for a long time. Bricks made and fired on the estate formed walls two-feet thick. Three stories high and filled with large rooms, the house centered on a grand hall and spiral staircase. The drawing room, dining room, and library, along with Grandmother's bedroom and a nursery, were on the ground floor. Below was a full cellar. The second and third floors contained six bedrooms each. A two-story brick building behind the main building housed the kitchen and laundry rooms. A hydraulic pump forced water from outside through pipes to tanks in the attic of the house to be used in the several bathrooms and basins. There were also storerooms, pantries, and a wine cellar. Behind the house lay the brick cottages for the house servants along with an icehouse and a smokehouse. The whole settlement was surrounded by giant trees shading the house and a great parklike lawn.

In 1858, James Chesnut was elected to the Senate, and Mary Boykin accompanied him to Washington. This is where they forged many friendships with great Confederate leaders. One of these friendships was with Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Davis. When Lincoln became president, James Chesnut returned to South Carolina to become a general during the war. Mary Boykin Miller Chesnut followed her husband around from place to place as he traveled the South during the war. She recorded everything she saw and heard, and this provided material for her diary. When she was not travelling with her husband, her drawing room served as a gallery for the Confederate elite. She loved to entertain guests in her home.

After the war, Mary Boykin and James Chesnut returned to their plantation, and worked unsuccessfully to free themselves of their heavy debts. During this time, she tried to write fiction, but was unsuccessful. In the 1880s, she revised and expanded her diaries from the Civil War, published as A Diary from Dixie. This diary is recognized today as a great historical source about the Civil War and the Confederacy. Her diary begins on February of 1861 and continues through August of 1865. Chesnut once said this about her diary: "At some future day [it may] afford facts about these times and prove useful to more important people than I am." Mary Boykin Miller Chesnut did not complete the revisions and the expansions of her diary she had planned due to her death on November 22, 1886. Mary Boykin Miller Chesnut is recognized in South Carolina as a great woman from the Civil War period.

The Chesnut Cottage is now located in Columbia, S.C. on Hampton Street in the historical district. It currently houses a bed and breakfast. There are five rooms which can be rented. Located in the house are Civil War artifacts and a library.

Notes for JAMES CHESNUT, JR.:

James Chesnut, Jr., was the son and heir of Colonel James Chesnut, whose wife was Mary Coxe, of Philadelphia. Mary Coxe's sister married Horace Binney, the eminent Philadelphia lawyer. James Chesnut, Jr., was born in 1815 and graduated from Princeton. For fourteen years he served in the legislature of South Carolina, and in January, 1859, was appointed to fill a vacancy in the United States Senate. In November, 1860, when South Carolina was about to secede, he resigned from the Senate and thenceforth was active in the Southern cause, first as an aide to General Beauregard, then as an aide to President Davis, and finally as a brigadier-general of reserves in command of the coast of South Carolina.

Notes for DAVID A. WHITE:

The City of Mebane traces its beginnings to the early 19th century when a post office was established in 1809. The town was named for Brigadier General Alexander Mebane of the North Carolina Militia and a member of Congress in the 1790's. In 1855, the railroad arrived and Mebane was incorporated in 1881 as the town of Mebanesville. The name was officially changed to Mebane in 1883. The charter was amended to the City of Mebane in February of 1987.

"The White Furniture Company put Mebane, NC on the map. Literally. The town was incorporated in 1881, the same year the company was founded by the two White brothers, Dave and Will. Fueled by the success of the White's, the town grew from a one-company village of 231 inhabitants to, by the First World War, a thriving town of over a thousand people ."

"Dave and Will were local residents of Mebane, from one of the more prosperous and prominent families in the area. Their father, Stephen A. White, had won a seat in the state senate as a Republican in a Democratic county, was an elder in the local Presbyterian church, and served as postmaster from 1855 until the time of his death. However, a series of loans extended to friends badly hurt by the depressions in the 1870's forced him into bankruptcy. Determined to preserve the family honor, sons Will and Dave pledged to pay off the money owed to their father's creditors, and set out to do that by opening White Furniture Company. They started with a small loan from a family friend and a stash of $275 that they amassed from their jobs as telegraph operators. Eventually, four brothers would enter the company. Will served as the company's president, Dave as the general manager. In 1896, the most ambitious of the three brothers, J. Sam White, finished his college degree but then came into the family's company as a day laborer, working sixty hours a week, at a starting salary of five cents an hour. Later, he was elected secretary-treasurer while a fourth brother, Stephen Arthur, worked as company salesman."

"The White brothers were aggressive businessmen who took seriously their place in the town and who, like many in the New South, equated industrial growth with civic duty and regional pride. These values of industrial gentility are evident in the obituaries for their father, who died in 1908. Characteristically, the newspapers pass over in silence his bankruptcy, yet all of them devote almost as much time to the successful sons as they do to the father and his Scotch-Irish genealogy. The Whites, one obituary notes, have been "foremost men in the development of Mebane and the surrounding country, industrially, educationally, and morally."

"White's is credited with being the first furniture company in America to advertise a "line" as a way of consolidating its reputation." White Furniture Company also landed a substantial contract with the U.S. government to supply furniture to American officers and enlisted men in Panama. "A total of fifty-eight boxcars full of White furniture was shipped from Mebane, North Carolina . . . [headed] to the Panama Canal." "Years later, in 1912, J. Sam White approached millionaire Edwin Grove and his son-in-law Fred Seely about supplying some of the furniture for the luxurious mountain resort hotel, the Grove Park Inn, that they were building in Asheville, North Carolina . . . Today, the Grove Park Inn boasts one of the largest collections of Arts and Crafts furniture in the nation, and many of the pieces still have, in the upper right-hand drawer, a small metal label: "The White Line, the Right Line."

Mr. David A. White of Mebane Killed in Auto Wreck Sunday.

The death of Mr. David A. White Sunday in an auto wreck was a shock to his friends throughout the county. He and a party of friends were returning in an automobile from a church in Hawfields, some four miles south of Mebane. He was accompanied by Miss Mary Hooker of Durham who sustained three broken ribs and a severe bruise on her back, and Mr. McCoy Patton and Miss Margaret Darby of Maryland who were thrown out and sustained only slight injuries. In attempting to dodge a bad place in the road the car skidded and turned turtle. Mr. White was caught by the heavy car and crushed about the breast. He lived only about twenty minutes after the accident.

Mr. White was a son of the late Mr. Stephen A. White, one of the country's most prominent citizens during his lifetime. He was in his 56th year. Over thirty years ago he and his brother W. E. White, started a lumber business and soon thereafter founded the White Furniture Company, which has grown to be one of the largest furniture factories in the South, as well as one of the best known this side of Grand Rapids. No citizen has done more for the growth of the town than "Dave" White. He was full of vim and push all the time and enthusiastic in whatever he engaged. He was loyal to his town, his friends and his church. The burial took place in the cemetery at Mebane on Monday afternoon and was attended by a large number of friends and relatives. Besides his aged mother, there survive three brothers, William E. White, S. Arthur White, and J. Sam White, all of Mebane; two sister, Mrs. Charles Millender of Asheville, and Mrs. W. A. Murray of Mebane.

She was born May 30, 1794 in North Carolina, and died December 21, 1854. He married (2) JEMIMA [--?--]. She was born 1802.

Notes for REUBEN R. WHITE:

Concord United Methodist

Reuben White, in consideration of his desire to promote the Methodist Episcopal Church South, especially at Concord, deeded to Trustees Henry Welch, Corry Pettigrew, George W. Smith, John Coats, Nicholas D. White, David M. Scott and George W. Harrell two acres of land on which a church house was to be erected. He also guaranteed the right to have passageway to a spring on his land about two hundred yards from the site. Said deed was executed on August 7, 1869 and recorded on page 370 of Book Number 6 at Registers Office in Decaturville.

Reuben White came from NC and settled on Rushing Creek, 4 miles south of Decaturville.

The 1850 Decatur County Census indicates that Reuben White owned 2500 acres of land.

Notes for ROBERT WHITE:

"Robert rendered service for the Republic of Texas 1835-36 as a Private and a Captain to Shelby County, TX by 1837, there about a year. Robert's brother William. H., a Methodist Preacher, settled there previously. To Montgomery County, now Walker County (formed ca 1838 - 460 acres there, still called White Survey. Robert. & family to Leon County, by 1850 census." Notes from Frank H. Mason

Notes for NANCY COBURN:

From the History of Leon County: Nancy Coburn White died about 1866 under unusual circumstances. She was riding a horse to visit a neighbor when a windstorm blew up. A falling tree killed both her and her horse. She is buried beside her husband in Leon County. The graves are surrounded by a rock fence but in 1988 were not marked.

142. NANCY⁶ WHITE (HENRY H.⁵, JOSEPH⁴, JOSEPH³, MOSES², ADAM¹) was born October 06, 1796 in North Carolina, and died May 30, 1881 in Decatur County, TN. She married NICHOLAS WELCH III, son of NICHOLAS WELCH and [--?--] ALEXANDER. He was born June 12, 1798 in North Carolina, and died June 09, 1856 in Decatur County, TN.

Notes for NICHOLAS WELCH III:

In 1806 Nicholas Welch migrated from North Carolina to Decatur County, TN and settled about three miles south of the present town of Decaturville on Rushing Creek. He was a member of an immigrant party that included Reuben White; Elijah and Albert White and their two sisters, Sally and Nancy White; Dan Saint; Burr Rushing and several Negro slaves.

Nicholas married Nancy White and together they build a log cabin on Rushing Creek. One of their sons Henry Welch, married Mary Polly White, daughter of Reuben White, Jr. They moved to the top of the hill and built a two-story four-room house about 30 yards south of the present home site. There Henry and Polly raised their family and worked the farm of three boys and four girls. It was in Henry's name that the first land deeds were recorded in 1849.

143. REBECCA⁶ WHITE (HENRY H.⁵, JOSEPH⁴, JOSEPH³, MOSES², ADAM¹) was born October 27, 1800 in North Carolina, and died March 16, 1864. She married ABRAHAM HARRELL 1817. He was born July 24, 1793 in North Carolina, and died July 27, 1877.

Notes for REBECCA WHITE:

This is an hypothesis without proof. Rebecca, wife of Abraham Harrell, probably was the daughter of Henry White. In the 1830 census of Perry County, Tennessee. Abraham Harrell appears two households away from Henry White and adjacent to Reuben White. This would also be consistent with the close associations of Harrells and Whites with Rushings in the 1790 census of Anson County, North Carolina; the use of the name Reuben in descendant lines; and the choice of George W. Harrell as court-appointed guardian of the children of Albert White and Martha Rushing.

William Henry White served in the Confederate Cavalry during the Civil War and was killed during a calvary charge.

- iv. BURRELL W. WHITE, b. 1845, Nacogdoches County, TX; d. 1864, Camp Chase, OH.

Notes for BURRELL W. WHITE:

When Burrell, Henry's third son, turned 17, he enlisted in Company H, 3rd Texas Calvary in order to serve with his brother. The date of his enlistment was December 16, 1863 at Quitman, TX. On August 20, 1864, Private Burrell W. White and his brother, Sergeant James D. White, along with others of the regiment, were captured at the battle of Jonesboro, GA by Federal forces under the command of General George Armstrong Custer who was under the overall command of General Kilpatrick. General Custer and his men were well remembered by the prisoners for the kind and fair treatment accorded them. The prisoners were interned at Camp Chase, near Columbus, OH where they were starved to emaciation and issued one blanket per man to sleep under during the bitter winter nights.

On February 11, 1865, Burrell W. White died of pneumonia in the prisoner of war camp at Camp Chase, OH. In the Register of Confederate Dead interred at Camp Chase Cemetery, he is listed as D. W. White, grave marker 1181, grave 60, row 28.

Early inmates at the Camp Chase prison camp were chiefly political and military prisoners, from Kentucky and western Virginia. However, Union victories at Fort Donalson, Tennessee on February 16, 1862 and at Mississippi River Island No. 10 on April 8, 1862 brought a new influx of prisoners. All of the officers taken at these battles, except general and field officers who were sent to Fort Warren in Boston Harbor, were transferred to the Camp Chase prison. When the Confederate Stockade on Johnson's Island in Lake Erie was established most of the officers at Camp Chase were sent there. Following this transfer, men from the ranks, the privates, corporals and sergeants, made up the bulk of the Confederate soldiers confined at Camp Chase. The high tide of the prison population at Camp Chase was reached in 1863 when some 8,000 men were confined there.

During the winter of 1863-1864 a smallpox epidemic caused many deaths. In November 1864 there was an exchange of 10,000 sick and wounded prisoners between the North and South.

Camp Chase Confederate Cemetery, located at 2900 Sullivant Avenue, Columbus, Ohio, encloses within its less than two acres the mortal remains of 2,087 Confederate soldiers. These men died while prisoners of war. Nearly all of them were held captives at Camp Chase Military Prison, a portion of whose grounds became Camp Chase Confederate Cemetery. Added to their number are 31 Confederate soldiers who died at Camp Dennison near Cincinnati, Ohio. Their remains were removed to Camp Chase Cemetery shortly after the close of the War Between the States.

The following article is from the Confederate Veteran, Vol. VI, No. 3 Nashville, Tenn., March, 1898.

EFFORTS TO ESCAPE FROM CAMP CHASE

W. H. Richardson

Col. W. H. Knauss, of Columbus, Ohio, has had much of interesting correspondence because of his noble service in caring for Confederate graves at Camp Chase. He sends a letter from W. H. Richardson, of Austin, Tex. Extracts are copied from the letter:

Now, to tell an unvarnished tale, the story as it was written in hunger and suffering, might bring to the surface bitter memories, and be considered unseemly and out of place. Therefore I will only deal in a general way. After thirty-three years, my memory is as fresh as if it was yesterday. Arriving at Camp Chase early in August, 1864, we found an order curtailing rations to the lowest minimum possible to sustain life. Therefore, a constant want of the necessary healthy food to sustain life fast filled those graves-with the weak first, those who contracted disease next, while the strong men, inured to hardship and rations, wore on. During this time the sutler was not allowed to sell anything, not even pepper. You can imagine the rest.

No wonder, then, any scheme to escape was readily entered into. Our mess, composed of officers only, mostly border men, organized for the purpose of escaping. There were twenty-four of us in a room twenty-four feet square. The barrack shanty was built on posts two and one-half to three feet off the ground. In one end was a pine plank, one contract blanket, one suit of clothes. Cold and hungry, we dug and worked for eight long months, only to be disappointed again and again. Silent, scant tunnels, grand charging combinations, all failed.

I will give you an account of one of the many efforts which failed, through spies or "weak-kneed" brothers. Nine of us formed a secret organization pledged to one another by all we held sacred, to get away. The wall of No. I, on the side next to Columbus, was moved farther out, making more room, and a new sink, about 8 x 16 feet, eight feet deep, was dug. We conceived the idea of getting into it as soon as opened for use and tunneling out, as we had only about twenty feet to go. I volunteered to take up the planks and let down a detail to dig. Mine was the post of honor. Immediately in front was a street lamp; on the wall, a sentinel; a trusty, five feet away. I worked long and hard. The planks were double nailed and the tools were not numerous. The faintest shadow hid the form of the Confederate soldier from the aim of the sentinel, only too willing to fire; but the boldness of the thing was its strong point. No one suspected; not even the "spy" saw the dark line of that desperate, hungry soldier, working for life and liberty. The first night the planks were raised, and the work progressed rapidly; two or three shifts were pressed rapidly, and the work stopped for another night. The ground was not frozen solid enough where the new sewer led off, and when the tunnel struck it caved in, and daylight revealed the plot.

Then a howl went up. Under the very feet of the sentinel, in the light of a street lamp, a bold, daring attempt to escape was planned. The excitement in the Federal camp was great. It was ration day - rations were issued every two days. Instead of rations, an order was posted, which read: "Until the men concerned in the attempt to escape come forward or are brought forward, no more rations will be issued."

"Razorbacks," or weak-kneed Confederates, were ready to sell us for a mess of pottage. But little we cared. We, the "picked nine," were known only to ourselves, and were not giving a circus. That we would be betrayed, and probably shot, bothered us but little. We found that hungry men soon lose human feeling. Col. Hawkins, preacher and soldier, volunteered to go before the commandant, and eloquently presented the case, saying that "old men, innocent hundreds were being punished for the attempt of others." So rations were issued, and that job ended.

Colonel, thirty odd years is a long time. You and I are through fighting, and after these long years are past we can look back on the scenes of long ago without bitterness. We can appreciate true manhood as we find it and can commend a noble act or condemn the reverse. We prisoners of war at Camp Chase were captured on the battle-field, fighting as best we knew how the battles of our section. We struck no dishonorable blows; we treated prisoners as true soldiers. Then for a great government - strong in all that made an army, blessed as Ohio was with the rich fruits of earth to pen such men up and starve them till the silent testimonials within that tottering wall - out of all proportion to the number confined - to tell the tale is a sad record. When the vast throng of spirits mustered under the white banner of peace on that far-off shore shall shout praises before the throne of peace, great will be the reward of the man whom God raised up to honor the resting-place of those who died in those prison-walls.

Colonel, in our Texas home is a hearty welcome; a Virginia wife and a lot of Texas children will welcome you. Our rations are yours, and this old cavalryman of J. E. B. Stuart will swap yarns with you till the bugle calls us home.

Excuse this scrawl; I write as I fought: at will. May the God of battles and the white-winged Messenger of Peace keep you always!

150. SARAH ALMIRA⁶ WILSON (SARAH⁵ WHITE, MOSES⁴, MOSES³, HUGH², ADAM¹) was born Abt. 1783, and died Abt. 1833. She married JOHN BARHAM, son of BENJAMIN BARHAM and SARAH BROWN. He was born February 13, 1771³⁸.

Notes for SARAH ALMIRA WILSON:

Sarah Almira Wilson was captured by the Indians when she was 9 years old. Her mother, 5 siblings and 11 other people were also captured at the time. One of her siblings was said to be a baby sister who died during captivity. They were captured by the Indians on June 26, 1792 in an attack on Ziegler Fort near Gallatin, TN. Her mother and the other captives were sold back by the Cherokee to Mrs. Wilson's husband in a short time. Sarah was kept by the Creek Indians as a slave for 3 years and was returned to her family when she was 12 years old. After returning from captivity she is said to have long retained the manners and customs of her captors.

153. MARGARET⁶ WHITE (JAMES⁵, MOSES⁴, MOSES³, HUGH², ADAM¹) was born April 08, 1771, and died August 27, 1827. She married COL. CHARLES MCCLUNG, son of MATTHEW MCCLUNG and MARTHA CUNNINGHAM. He was born May 13, 1761 in Lancaster, PA, and died August 19, 1830 in Harrisburg, KY.

Notes for COL. CHARLES MCCLUNG:

Surveyor, merchant, and lawyer Charles McClung was born in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, the son of Matthew McClung, a native of the North of Ireland, and wife Martha Cunningham. Charles spent most of his early life working on his father's farm and was engaged in business in Philadelphia for a time. But like his contemporaries he found the appeal of the frontier compelling and after moving through the Shenandoah Valley in Virginia he came upon White's Fort, on the present site in the city of Knoxville.

City founder James White was a Presbyterian kinsman and McClung married his eldest daughter Margaret and with his father-in-law really set about developing the Holston River basin which encompassed Knoxville. The fact that the streets of Knoxville were named after those in Philadelphia was due to McClung's influence as the city's first surveyor and from 1792 to 1834 he held the clerkship of the first Knox County court. He was a member of the convention which met in Knoxville in 1796 to form the constitution for the new state of Tennessee and along with Revolutionary War hero William Blount drafted the constitution.

McClung, a major in the cavalry regiment for the territory, was also one of Knoxville's leading businessmen, right up until his death. He was described as a man of fine personal appearance and of an able and discriminating mind. Many of Knoxville's most distinguished citizens were descended from Charles McClung.

Calvin Morgan McClung (1855-1919) was a leading businessman and collector of local historical materials. The grandson of Charles McClung, Judge Hugh Lawson White (1858-1936) served as a justice in the Tennessee Supreme Court and as a chancellor of the chancery division of Knox County. He was a trustee of the University of Tennessee for 23 years, as his father and grandfather had been.

Surveyor, merchant, lawyer, was born in Lancaster, PA, the son of Matthew McClung, a native of Ireland, and wife, Martha Cunningham. Charles spent most of his early life on his father's farm, then engaged in business in Philadelphia for a time. About 1788 he traveled through the Valley of Virginia to White's Fort, at the present site of Knoxville, October 28, 1790. He married Margaret White, eldest child of James White, founder of Knoxville. She was born in Iredell Co., N.C., 8 Apr 1771 and died in Knoxville, 27 Aug 1827. Upon the establishment of Knoxville in 1791, upon the site of White's Fort, his son-in-law laid off the sixteen squares of four lots each. The fact that the streets bore the same names as those of Philadelphia was due to the influence of McClung. McClung was appointed clerk of the first Knox county court in 1792 and held the office until 1834. He was engaged by the county court to plan a highway from Knoxville west to Campbell's Station and thence to the western boundary of Knox county. He was also one of the commissioners appointed to lay off part of the boundary of the county. In 1794 he was named a charter trustee of Blount College.

McClung was a second lieutenant in the cavalry of the Territory in 1795; he was appointed First Major in the Cavalry Regiment for Hamilton District, Oct 13, 1796. He was a member of the convention for the state of Tennessee; he and William Blount were named to draft the constitution. McClung was chairman of the committee to estimate the expenses of the Convention. In addition to being county court clerk, he was county trustee, 1794-1806. In 1792 he was appointed one of the United States Commissioners to superintend the running of the boundary line established by the Treaty of Holston, 1791. Major McClung was one of the presidential electors in 1796 and in 1800. He was also a merchant. In 1816 the firm, Charles McClung & Son (Matthew), conducted a store opposite the state bank. He had partnership in the McClung and Cambell mercantile establishment at Campbell's Station. He employed the architect, Thomas Hope (q.v.), to build a mansion on his farm ten miles west of Knoxville near Ebenezer which he named "States View" and that was the McClung home for a number of years. He died at Harrodsburgh Springs, Kentucky, where, with his son, Matthew, he had gone for his health. He was buried there, but many years later his remains were removed to Gray Cemetery.

Charles McClung was a man of fine personal appearance and of an able and discriminating mind. He sent his children to the best schools and colleges within reach. Two of his nine children died in childhood. His daughter, Polly, was one of the young women who attended Blount College; she married Judge Thomas L. Williams (q.v.). Matthew was the ancestor of C.M. McClung (q.v.) Many of Knoxville's distinguished citizens are descendants of its first surveyor.

The convention, which provided Tennessee with its first constitution, convened in Knoxville on Jan 11, 1796 and included as the delegates from Knox Co.: William Blount, James White, Charles McClung, John Crawford, and John Adair. The meetings were held in the office of David Henley, agent of the War Department, at the southwest corner of what is today the intersection of Gay street and Church Ave. Charles McClung served on the committee which did much of the actual drafting of the constitution . . .

Children of MARGARET WHITE and CHARLES MCCLUNG are:

268. i. MARY LAWSON⁷ MCCLUNG, b. May 28, 1792.
- ii. HUGH M. MCCLUNG, b. May 22, 1794, Knox County, TN.

269. iii. MATTHEW MCCLUNG, b. October 10, 1795; d. October 05, 1844.
 iv. JAMES WHITE MCCLUNG, b. June 06, 1798.

Notes for JAMES WHITE MCCLUNG:

The fourth child of Col. Charles and Margaret White McClung was born 6 June 1798. He graduated at the University of NC where he studied law. He moved to Huntsville, AL and rose to the front rank in his profession. He was one of the earliest attorneys in the area. He was a member of the State Legislature; Speaker of the House; President of the Senate; and at the time of his death, was a candidate for the U.S. Senate without opposition. He practiced law in Madison County where his records appear in many court records. (See Database: AL: Madison Co.).

James W. McClung married 1) 29 Apr 1823 to Sarah Elizabeth Mitchell. She was born ca 1802 to David Brydie Mitchell, governor of Georgia. They had six children. James md 2) in 1834 to Elizabeth F. Spottswood. She was born 2 Feb 1812 to Elliott Spottswood (a desc. of Gov. Alexander Spottswood of VA.) They had two children. She died 18 Sep 1837. James W. married 3) 6 June 1839 to Margaret Patrick. She was born 6 June 1819, of Huntsville. She died in Jan, 1892 in Huntsville. They had five children.

James White McClung died 31 May 1848.

He married (1) ELIZABETH MOORE CARRICK December 14, 1789 in Knox County, TN, daughter of SAMUEL CARRICK and ELIZABETH MOORE. She died March 25, 1831. He married (2) ANN E. PEYTON November 30, 1832.

Notes for HUGH LAWSON WHITE:

American political leader, b. Iredell County., N.C. He moved (1787) to what is now East Tennessee and served in the wars against the Creek and Cherokee. He was (1793) secretary to Gov. William Blount, studied law in Lancaster, PA, and began (1796) practice in Knoxville, TN He held various judicial offices in Tennessee and was a state senator (1807-9, 1817-25) before becoming a U.S. Senator in 1825. A supporter of Andrew Jackson and his policies, he split with the President when Jackson backed Martin Van Buren for President. White, in protest, ran (1836) for the presidency as a Whig party candidate and secured the electoral votes of Tennessee and Georgia. He resigned (1840) from the U.S. Senate after he fought, in opposition to the instructions of the Tennessee legislature, Van Buren's plan for the Independent Treasury System.

WHITE, Hugh Lawson, a Senator from Tennessee; born in Iredell County, N.C., October 30, 1773; moved with his parents in 1785 to that part of North Carolina which now is Knox County, Tenn.; participated in an expedition against the Cherokees around 1793; pursued classical studies in Philadelphia, PA, and studied law in Lancaster, PA; was admitted to the bar in 1796 and commenced practice in Knoxville, TN; judge of the State superior court 1801-1807; member, State senate 1807-1809; appointed United States district attorney in 1808; judge of the State supreme court 1809-1815; president of the State bank; member, State senate 1817-1825; elected to the United States Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Andrew Jackson; reelected in 1829 and 1835, as a Jacksonian, and served from October 28, 1825, to January 13, 1840, when he resigned because he could not conscientiously obey the instructions of his constituents; served as President pro tempore of the Senate during the Twenty-second and Twenty-third Congresses; chairman, Committee on Indian Affairs (Twentieth through Twenty-sixth Congresses); died in Knoxville, TN, April 10, 1840; interment in First Presbyterian Church Cemetery.

Hugh Lawson White and the strange election of 1836

by Jack Neely (2000)

As one leader after another assures us the presidential election is "not a crisis," history's a comfort. This is not the weirdest presidential election ever, by a long shot.

It's especially comforting to remember that today's worst-case scenario that the race will end up decided by the House of Representatives was precisely what the opposition party wanted in 1836, even as they campaigned before the election.

I haven't heard this election mentioned in the history lessons we've gotten from the TV networks, probably because it's too complicated to explain in a 12-second sound bite. It wasn't even mentioned in the daily's list of strange elections, even though one of the main candidates that year is buried half a block from the News-Sentinel office.

His name was Hugh Lawson White, and he's still right there on State Street. It seems time to bring him up again.

He was 13 when he moved with his family to this remote riverside bluff. His dad was James White, an obscure militia captain who'd received a veterans' land grant. When he was only 28, Hugh was appointed a judge of Tennessee's Superior Court, and would thereafter be known as Judge White, though he'd later be a D.A., a state senator, and a banker, Knoxville's first, in fact. He got to know Andrew Jackson during the War of 1812, starting a friendship they would both outlive.

Jackson resigned his seat in the Senate to run for president in the election of 1824, the first of the three elections we've been hearing about in which the losing candidate got the greater popular vote. It was the first election forced into the House of Representatives, which picked John Quincy Adams over General Jackson.

White was the man who replaced Jackson in the Senate. Suffering from tuberculosis, which would kill several of his children and his wife, White was known on Capitol Hill as "the Skeleton."

When Calhoun resigned the vice presidency in 1833, the Senate picked Hugh White to be their president pro tem. and acting vice-president. If President Jackson had died of one of his various wounds and disorders in early 1833, Hugh White of Knoxville would have taken his place. As he turned 60, his star was on the ascent.

By then, many had begun to distrust the once-popular president some were calling King Andrew I. When it became clear that Jackson intended to hand-pick his own successor in office, several of his old allies revolted.

Among the first to be annoyed with Jackson were his fellow legislators from Tennessee. In 1834, a committee that included America's most popular Congressman, Rep. Davy Crockett (D-Tenn.), nominated Hugh White to run against Jackson's prince, Martin Van Buren.

With running mate John Tyler, White was popular in the South and in the Midwest. Helped by Crockett's wickedly funny satires of Van Buren, in 1835 White may have felt he had a chance at his nation's highest job. But then came some surprises.

His anti-Jackson allies, who were now calling themselves Whigs after the opposition party in England nominated another candidate, too: Daniel Webster, who had a strong following in New England, where White's support was weakest. Then they nominated still another candidate: William Henry Harrison. More famous than White, he had a strong base of support in the Midwest.

By 1836, the Whigs were effectively running three regional candidates against Van Buren. None was likely to win by himself. The best White and Webster and Harrison could hope for is that they could throw the race. Old enough to remember the election of 1824, they knew that if they could keep Van Buren from getting a majority of electoral votes, they could force the decision into the Whig-dominated House of Representatives, where they'd pick someone they liked a lot better.

White's chief propagandist didn't get to vote for him. Crockett died a few months before the election, at the Alamo. White's candidacy especially rankled his old buddy, President Jackson, who campaigned vigorously against him in their shared home state. White swept Tennessee anyway. He won Georgia, too, chalking up a total of 26 electoral votes. Though he wasn't on the ballot in several states, White won 10 percent of the popular vote nationwide, a figure Ralph Nader might envy. White finished third in the four-man race.

But the fix didn't take. Though the anybody-but-Van Buren allies earned almost half the popular vote, they tallied only 124 electoral votes. Van Buren earned 170, and the presidency.

White remained a popular statesman in Tennessee, but was bitter about the loss. Asked how his old colleague was spending his time, Congressman Felix Grundy reported White was sitting in his corner cursing and "spitting tobacco juice by the gallon."

White resigned from the Senate in a dispute with the pro-Van Buren state Legislature, and died in 1840, during the presidential term he campaigned for. There was talk of building him a huge monument here. But the political turmoil of the 1840s and '50s blurred the old issues and alliances, as well as Hugh White's status as local hero. His headstone isn't much larger than most of them in the old First Presbyterian graveyard. He's not even mentioned on the historical plaque that stands a few yards away.

We're still not sure who he was. Historians refer to White variously as a naive dupe of the Whigs, as a cynical co-conspirator in a failed plot to steal a presidential election from the people or as an honest man who chucked his career for principle.

Less than a year after his death, White's old ally/rival, William Henry Harrison, became president. One month later, White's old running mate, John Tyler, followed.

The inscription on Hugh Lawson White's tombstone reads as follows:

To the Memory of Hugh Lawson White who was born Oct 29th, 1773 and departed this life April 10th, 1840

"Composed in suffering and in joy sedate
Good without noise, without pretense great,
True to his word, in every thought sincere,
He knew no wish but what the world might hear."

This humble tribute of devoted affection and deep regret is deposited by his bereaved wife.

On June 13, 1836, Abraham Lincoln wrote to the editor of the Salem Journal, "If I am alive on the first Monday in November, I shall vote for Hugh L. White for President."

156. MARY MCCONNELL⁶ WHITE (*JAMES*⁵, *MOSES*⁴, *MOSES*³, *HUGH*², *ADAM*¹) was born November 11, 1782 in Knox County, TN, and died December 1862. She married (1) DR. FRANCIS MAY. He died 1817. She married (2) JUDGE JOHN OVERTON, son of JAMES OVERTON and MARY WALLER. He was born April 09, 1766 in Louisa County, VA, and died April 12, 1833.

Notes for DR. FRANCIS MAY:

Dr. Francis May moved from Winchester, Virginia, to Nashville in 1790. He practiced medicine in Nashville for several years. Later he moved to Knoxville. While living there, he married Mary McConnell White, the daughter of General James White, the founder of Knoxville. The May family returned to Nashville in 1804. Dr. May continued to practice medicine until his untimely death of heart disease in 1817, leaving a widow and five children. Three years later, Mary May married Judge John Overton of Travellers Rest.

Nashville Whig carried the obituary for Dr. Francis May on Monday, December 1, 1817.

Died – In this place on Wednesday, 28th inst., Doctor Francis May, an eminent Physician. Dr. May bore the illness which relieved him of all sublunary cares, with singular fortitude. In the death of this gentleman, society has lost a valuable member – one who has done much to relieve the afflictions of the human family. An amiable and affectionate wife, with several children, sustain the irreparable loss of a husband and parent.

-- Lately in Madison county, A. Territory, Major John Hutchings

Mrs. Mary Overton survived her husband, Judge John Overton, by 29 years. In her will, written on October 18, 1861, she gave specific directions to her executors regarding the purchase of a lot at Mt. Olivet Cemetery. Mrs. Overton died in December 1862. Her will authorized the purchase of the cemetery lot and the removal from the family graveyard at Travellers Rest, “the remains of her husband Judge Overton, her brother in law Samuel, her daughter Ann O. Brinkley, her son Jackson May, and her son in law Richard Barry and his two children.” Lot 141 Section 1, at Mt. Olivet Cemetery, was purchased on December 29, 1862, and the Lot Owner’s name was listed M. M. Overton (Mary M. Overton). The above mentioned were re-interred at Mt. Olivet on November 20, 1868. No mention was made in her will regarding removal of the remains of her first husband, Dr. Francis May, to Mt. Olivet. The Interment Records of Mt. Olivet Cemetery, however, show that, during the previous year, on June 26, 1867, “the remains of Dr. May” had been “transferred from private grounds” and buried on Lot 141, Section 1, the Mary M. Overton Lot. Col. John Overton, the only son of Judge John and Mary Overton, was the executor of his mother’s will and would have made arrangements for the re-interments at Mt. Olivet Cemetery, including the re-interment of Dr. Francis May.

Notes for JUDGE JOHN OVERTON:

Judge John Overton was one of Tennessee's most influential individuals during the early 19th century. Born April 9, 1766, to James and Mary Waller Overton, he began his life in Louisa County Virginia. In 1787, at age 21, he moved to Mercer County, KY to study law. Within two years he completed his studies and moved to Nashville. During his first years in Nashville he lodged with another young lawyer, Andrew Jackson at the widow Donelson's boarding house. The personal and professional relationship between the two lawyers would last the rest of their lives.

In 1795, President George Washington appointed Overton the Supervisor of Revenue of the District of TN. The following June, he became District inspector of the Revenue. As he became more successful Overton turned his attention to building a home. He purchases 320 acres from the heirs of David Maxwell in 1796. Three years later he hired local carpenters David Cummin and Frederick Pinkly to build a house. Due to his budding career he actually spent little time on the property. Elected to the Superior Court of Tennessee in 1804 he served as judge until 1810. In the fall of 1811, the Tennessee Supreme Court replaced the Superior Court, which Overton was elected a member. He remained until his retirement. During his tenure as Judge, he acquired more property and built additions to his home.

In 1816, Judge John Overton retired from the Tennessee Supreme Court, but he remained very active in law and land speculation. A year later he compiled the Tennessee Reports, which covered cases tried before the court between the years 1791-1816. In 1794, John Overton, Andrew Jackson and James Winchester had purchased 5,000 acres in west TN along the Mississippi River, and in 1819 they laid out the city of Memphis. In the summer of 1820, Judge Overton married Mary White May, a widow with five children. Over the next ten years Overton will focus on his family, his home, his property and helping his good friend Andrew Jackson get elected to the presidency.

By 1830, Judge Overton had expanded Travellers Rest Plantation to 2,300 acres and he increased the size of his home by expanding the original four-room structure to a 4000 square ft house. His family grew as well. He and his wife had three children, a son and two daughters. At the age of age of sixty-seven, John Overton dies on April 12, 1833 at Travellers Rest.

Private law practice: Partner with General Sam Houston, Lebanon, Tennessee.

BIOGRAPHICAL ESSAY

Overton, John (Apr. 9, 1766 - Apr. 12, 1833), jurist, pioneer, and politician, was born in Louisa County, Va., the son of James and Mary (Waller) Overton (Overton family data, compiled by Edyth Rucker Whitley, Nashville, Tenn.). His family, of English origin, was well connected but poor, and young Overton taught school for several years in order to assist in the education of his brothers and sisters. In 1787 he migrated to Kentucky for the purpose of studying law and took board in the home of a Mrs. Robards, of Mercer County. Completing his studies two years later, he decided to practise law in the frontier town of Nashville, Tenn. Making his way thither, he became a boarder in the home of the widow of Col. John Donelson. Here he was the bed-fellow of Andrew Jackson, another young lawyer who had shortly preceded him to Nashville (Parton, post, I, 149). In 1790 the western part of North Carolina became the Southwest Territory, and Overton was made supervisor of the federal excise (Knoxville Gazette, June 5, 1795). During this period he also became much interested in land speculations and was Jackson's partner in some of the most important land deals (Bassett, post, I, 13-15). In 1794 these two men purchased the Rice tract, upon which, in 1819, they founded the town of Memphis.

In 1804 Jackson resigned his place upon the bench of the superior court of Tennessee and Overton succeeded to the post, holding this position until the old courts were abolished, Jan. 1, 1810. In November 1811 he was appointed a member of the supreme court of the state to succeed George Campbell. In 1816 he resigned. He published two volumes of Tennessee Reports (1813-17), which cover cases tried before the court from 1791 to 1816. Being intimately connected with the formulation of the law during the plastic period of a new jurisdiction, he became the recognized authority on all matters relating to land legislation, and in many cases it was his influence which shaped the form it took. He also built up the largest landed estate in Tennessee and was considered the richest citizen of the commonwealth. After his retirement from the bench, he devoted his entire time to the promotion of his private interests and the political fortunes of Andrew Jackson. In 1821 he, William B. Lewis, and John H. Eaton [qq.v.] formed an informal committee of close personal friends for the advancement of Jackson's candidacy for the presidency, and from this time until the election of 1828 they were largely engaged in the defense of their hero against his enemies (T. P. Abernethy, "Andrew Jackson and the Rise of Southwestern Democracy," in American Historical Review, October 1927, pp. 71-72). Because he had resided with the Robards family in Kentucky, Overton's services were especially valuable in combating the scandal bruited about during the campaign in connection with Jackson's marriage to Rachel Robards, formerly Rachel Donelson. Though Overton kept complete records of all his transactions, before his death he destroyed his correspondence with Jackson. On the election of "Old Hickory" to the presidency, Overton asked for no office and accepted no favors, remaining in Nashville to the end of his life. He must have possessed rare qualities, for he was unique in being able to live on intimate terms with Jackson as an adviser and friend without friction and without becoming a mere follower.

Henry A. Wise, who visited "The Hermitage" in 1828, described Overton as he sat in the family circle with a bandanna handkerchief thrown over his bald head, nose and chin nearly meeting, making ineffectual efforts to enter into the conversation (Seven Decades of the Union, 1872, pp. 100-03). His private life was apparently uneventful. His wife, Mary McConnell (White) May, was the widow of Dr. Francis May, the daughter of Gen. James White, and the sister of Hugh Lawson White.

The Whites of Tennessee

Fred Brown, continuing his series, examines the progeny of Ulster-Scots pioneer James White

Melinda White, daughter of the founder of Knoxville, Tennessee, is all but forgotten in history. But her story is one not only of sacrifice, tragedy and devotion, but also of ingenuity and courage in the face of immense obstacles. And, she was also a pretty good eye for real estate and architecture. >From one of the South's earliest and most prominent Scots-Irish families, Melinda White also married into a luminous heritage. It wasn't easy keeping up with all that history and tradition, but the intrepid daughter of General James White, pioneer soldier, freedom fighter and land speculator, was up to the task.

Melinda White was born February 15, 1789, in Knox County, Tennessee, one of seven children of James White and Mary Lawson, of the great Scots-Irish (Ulster-Scots) Lawson clan of Knoxville. She was the fourth and last daughter and child of James and Mary.

Born in Rowan County, North Carolina, which is now a part of Iredell County, James White was a captain of the North Carolina militia. He was one of the region's pioneers, and for his service and bravery in America's Revolutionary War, he was paid in land grants, which brought him to the fertile regions of East Tennessee along the Holston and French Broad Rivers.

When Melinda White married Colonel John Williams, it was more of a merger than a marriage. She, of course, was the daughter of the founder of Knoxville. Colonel Williams was the third son of Colonel Joseph and Rebecca (Lanier) Williams, the former soldier in America's Col J Williams House Revolutionary War. John Williams was born in Surry County, North Carolina, January 29, 1778. Colonel John Williams was admitted to the bar in Salisbury, North Carolina, in 1803, and began his practice near Knoxville.

Williams was a young captain in the Sixth United States Infantry from April 1799, to June 1800. He later served as captain in the regular army in the War of 1812, and then as colonel of a regiment of East Tennessee Mounted Volunteers, which he had raised. He took that regiment into Florida to fight the Seminole Indians.

On June 18, 1813, he was commissioned colonel of the 39th United States Infantry, which brought him under the command of General Andrew Jackson against the Creek Indians in Alabama. His exploits at the Battle of Horseshoe Bend, March 27, 1813, is credited with saving Jackson and the Americans.

Williams was something of a renaissance man with many interests. He served as a trustee of East Tennessee College, later the University of Tennessee, for 25 years. From 1815 to 1823 he served in the U.S. Senate from Tennessee, and became highly respected for his integrity and ability. He practiced law and exchanged letters with some of the brightest minds in the nation at the time, including Henry Clay, John Quincy Adams, John C. Calhoun, Daniel Webster and James K. Polk. Williams was also a dapper dresser. Dolly Madison called him the 'Chesterfield of the Senate,' referring to the always elegantly-dressed English Lord Chesterfield.

At the time he and Melinda married, Colonel John Williams was one of the most-respected names in Tennessee. In addition, his ancestors were part of the French court. And a descendant of the 'Horseshoe Colonel' became one of America's greatest playwrights - Tennessee Williams whose birth name was Thomas Lanier Williams, and he was the old colonel's great-great-nephew.

Tennessee Williams's father, Cornelius Williams, was born in Knoxville and is buried at Old Gray Cemetery, one of the city's two or three most historic burial grounds. His grandparents and great-grandparents are also buried in the cemetery. In his 'Memoirs,' Tennessee Williams wrote that his father's family line had "been an illustrious one, now gone a bit to seed, at least in prominence. He was directly descended from Tennessee's first senator, John Williams, hero of Kings Mountain; from the brother Valentine, of Tennessee's first Governor John (Nolichucky Jack) Sevier; and from Thomas Lanier Williams I, first chancellor of the Western Territory (as Tennessee was called before it became a state)."

Tennessee Williams, although not born in Knoxville, visited here upon occasion. His sister, Rose, was presented to Knoxville society, an event that is thought to have had a role in her mental illness. After her marriage to Colonel John Williams, Melinda White, sister of Judge Hugh L. White, a U.S. Presidential candidate against Martin Van Buren, began working to create a place of refuge for her busy husband. She knew what she wanted: a house that would be the envy of Knoxville and a huge surprise to her husband.

In 1825, she got her chance. That year, Colonel John Williams was appointed by President John Quincy Adams as the first charge d'affairs to the Federation of Central America in Guatemala. While he was away in Guatemala, Melinda constructed the landmark in East Knoxville on Dandridge Avenue, two miles from downtown. It was a two-storey brick masonry mansion. Its clay brick was dug and fired on the banks of the Tennessee River.

Originally, the home rested on 80-plus acres and looked off into the river and folded mountains beyond. Over time, some of the most notable men in Tennessee and their wives dined at the home, including Tennessee Governor Sam Houston, Hugh Lawson White, James K. Polk, David Crockett and Supreme Court Justice Thomas Lanier Williams. After spending about a year in Guatemala, the 'Horseshoe Colonel' returned home, practiced law and labored in land speculation, seeking anonymity and peace. And took up residence in his newly-built home.

By the time Melinda completed the house, it was one of the finest examples of the Federalist style in the growing city of Knoxville in the early 1800s. An unusual feature was the pediment with a fanlight at the roof line, a detail not found on other Knoxville houses of that time.

Built in a T-shape that was popular at that time, the house had a large section downstairs and a stairway connecting the upstairs. A kitchen, dining room and possibly another bedroom formed the rear section of the beautiful structure. The house was on the central hall plan, two rooms deep with a single story kitchen and a dining hall flanked on both sides by long porches.

The magnificent home overlooked the city, and it had a splendid view of the mountains.

Colonel John Williams died in 1837 at the age of 59. Williams family tradition holds that the colonel was on his way to Washington to visit his son, who had just been elected to Congress from Knoxville. Apparently the colonel stopped at a site near the forks of the Holston and French Broad rivers to snap off a switch to use in prodding his horse. While reaching for the thin tree branch, he was either bitten by a scorpion, snake or bee. He later died from the mysterious bite and was buried at First Knoxville Presbyterian Church, another historic cemetery in the city, that also is the burial place for James White, and many other prominent East Tennessee names from the past.

The house has gone through many incarnations since its construction. In 1855, the Williams estate included the house and 150 acres. It was sold to Abner G. Jackson, co-owner of a Knoxville dry goods store. When Jackson died in 1869, the estate was sold to a medical society, which intended to open a hospital in the large structure. That plan, however, fell through.

The state of Tennessee leased the property from 1883 to 1885, for a school for deaf black children. In 1885, the state bought the house and 27 acres for 5,500 dollars. As the school grew, rough additions were made to the house from the 1920s through the 1940s, thus destroying some of the home's originality. In the 1970s, the Sertoma Learning Center for the Mentally Retarded leased the house and 88 acres from the state.

Melinda's house was added to the National Historic Register in 1980 in an effort to help preserve it. On February 13, 1980, the ceiling of the 1920s addition collapsed and the house has remained unoccupied since.

In 1998, Alex Brandau, a Williams descendant from Nashville, Tennessee, was able to purchase the house and the lot it sits on from the state. He bargained for easement rights to the driveway, but was able only to secure just enough room behind the house to park an automobile, dashing his hopes and eliminating any wide commercial use.

He had dreamed of opening a Tennessee Williams museum in the house. The city of Knoxville has purchased the remaining 75 acres, and has turned it into a golf course for junior golfers.

In creating the course, the city for all time wiped out any archaeological discoveries, including eras extending from the War of 1812 through the US Civil War, since soldiers from both periods used the land as bivouacs.

The Williams Home, of course, is in need of major renovation, which goes unattended. It is boarded up today.

Brandau has practically thrown up his hands in despair. He has had very little help in renovating the home, and has very few financial outlets, since the state refused to sell him enough land to encompass a museum. Today, it is surrounded and dwarfed by a golf course.

This irrevocable outcome seems such an ignoble end for this glittering illustration of Tennessee history. The home just may be the finest example of early federalist style architecture in the state. And it is an even bet that it is one of the very few built by a woman in the early 1800s.

The sad note is, that just as the house is fading away to time and the weather, Melinda White Williams's story is all but unknown.

In despair at having lost her husband and a child, a distraught Melinda White Williams died March 2, 1838, at her beautiful Dandridge Avenue home in Knoxville, victim of her own hand. She committed suicide.

Robert Newton White was born in South Carolina on Dec 8, 1810, and on January 21, 1840, he married Julliett Means. To this union were born two children, Hugh and Mary Jane. On Oct 14, 1845, Mr White and his family arrived at Dresden in Navarro County Texas.

Robert White was appointed the first postmaster of Corsicana but he could not serve as he was already serving as the County Clerk. He served Corsicana as County Clerk for ten years and resigned in 1856 because of his failing eyesite. He then devoted his time to raising livestock and horses near Dawson. Robert moved back to Corsicana around 1870 and was among those who were instrumental in getting a railroad to Corsicana in 1871.

Mr. White was a Presbyterian and was one of the sixteen people who organized the Church in Corsicana on May 16, 1853. Robert, with John McQuiston, purchased property and donated it to the Third Avenue Presbyterian Church. Mr. White was a Mason. He died May 25, 1891. A painting of him can be seen today hanging in the Navarro County Clerk's Office at the County Courthouse in Corsicana. A painting of Mrs. White can be seen at the old log home in Pioneer Village.

2. Robert Newton White

R. N. White, First County Clerk, First Corsicana Postmaster

A native of South Carolina, Robert Newton White (1810 - 1891) moved his family to this area in 1845. One year later Navarro County was created and White was elected the first county clerk, a position he held for ten years. During that time he also served as the first Corsicana Postmaster, 1849 - 52. A civic leader, White was instrumental in persuading railroads to build lines to the city and also helped start a Cumberland Presbyterian church here. His first Corsicana home, a log cabin, was constructed at this site. (1980)

Notes for JOHN WESLEY FISHER:

The following is said to have been written by the Rev. John W. Fisher. The original document was owned circa 1972 by Latham Blount, Decaturville, Tennessee:

"I was born December 6, 1866 on the road in Buncombe Co., NC while my parents were on the way to Bedford Co., Tennessee. Am now in my 89th year. We lived in Bedford County three years and went to Lost Creek in what was then Perry County, TN but is now Decatur County. We went from there to Phillips County, Arkansas, in about 1821 and stayed there one year. Then came back to Lost Creek and have lived in this neighborhood ever since. I professed religion in 1823 and joined the Methodist church. I was licensed to exhort in 1840 and licensed to preach in 1845 at Old Center Camp Ground. My first sermon was preached from the text "I Am Now Ready to be Offered," (2 Tim: 4-6). I was ordained Deacon by Bishop Capers at Trenton, TN in 1850, and was ordained Elder by Bishop Payne at Paducah, KY, in 1867.

"I was married April 6, 1837 to Nancy G. White and we lived together until she departed this life May 23, 1904. To us were born eleven children, seven who preceded her to the good world. I am now very delicate and don't expect it to be long before I will go to meet the loved ones who have gone before me. I've had a great many to tell me that I was the instrument to God's hand of their conversion and many of them have already gone home and will be there to meet me when I go. My address is Decaturville, Tennessee, R.F.D." [The Fisher Scrap Book 1730-1972]

Notes for WILLIAM GILBERT RUSHING:

In 1841 he donated the land where Campground Cumberland Presbyterian Church now stands for use for a church and cemetery.

Liberty Church

During the "religious awakening" years of 1840 - 1845, people in the county would congregate and camp together in order to worship and increase their knowledge of the word of God. One such place was on land owned by William Gilbert Rushing. In 1847, this land was donated by Gill Rushing and a log building was constructed by 28 members.

Notes for EMILY H. RUSHING:

"Died--At her father's residence, near Decaturville, Tennessee, October 1, 1875, Emily H., daughter of Bro. W. G. and sister Eliza Rushing; aged fifteen years, seven months, and nineteen days.

"Emily was not a member of the church, but an earnest seeker at the altar in August before she died in October; so, we trust, she now rest in peace with an older sister, Catherine, a consistent member of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, at Liberty, who accidentally shot herself the 4th of August, 1874. Also Mahaly, who died August 24, 1871, the youngest daughter of Brother Rushing, and the pet of the family. The writer had the pleasure of instructing them all in Sabbath-school; but little Emily, who outlived the others, was a very attentive student in the Sabbath-school room, and endeared herself to the hearts of her associates. They have left a large family of brothers and sisters who are very near all members of our Church, and a large circle of friends who sorely mourn their loss.

"Bro. Rushing is an elder of the Liberty congregation, and has battled long and hard for the cause of our blessed Master. Hold up your head, Brother and sister Rushing, you will soon cross the river, where the wicked cease from troubling, and the weary are at rest...." James M. Holley. Decaturville, January, 1876.

232. LACY GRIFFITH⁷ WHITE (ROBERT⁶, HENRY H.⁵, JOSEPH⁴, JOSEPH³, MOSES², ADAM¹) was born 1810 in Anson County, NC, and died in Texas. He married ELIZABETH HAMMOND 1831. She was born 1813.

Notes for LACY GRIFFITH WHITE:

Resided in Fayette County, TN in 1840. Moved to Hempstead County, AR in 1849, and to Ouachita County, AR before 1860. Later moved to Winnsboro, Wood County, TX.

Lacy Griffith White was born about 1810 in N.C. before Robert White moved to TN. Lacy Griffith did not come to Texas when Robert moved there with the rest of the family. For some reason, he went on Fayette Co. TN. where he is found in 1840 with wife Elizabeth, one son and two daughters. He moved to Arkansas around 1848-49 and is on the 1850 Hempstead Co. census, and later on the 1860 Ouachita Co. census. He moved to Texas in time to be on the 1870 census in Hopkins Co. with his family and sons-in- laws. His oldest son Hedley Ezekiel White, came to south TX (Brazos Co., and Leon Co.)

before 1860. He served in the Civil War, enlisting in Leon Co., TX. He was a Primitive Baptist elder late in life, pastoring the Shiloh Church and others in Leon, Brazos and Madison counties.

Lacy Griffith White is mentioned as Robert White's oldest son in the History of Texas along with Milam Co. etc., but is omitted in one later history book. He died in Hopkins Co. before 1880. Some other researchers of Lacy Griffith's line are Joe Ellison, who is descended from Hedley E. White, and Mary Sinner-Hendrickson who is descended from Lacy Griffith's daughter Mary. I am descended from Reuben E. White, Lacy Griffith's next-to-youngest son.

A lot of information on the White family I have is from Jack D. White's book A Line of White which goes back to Adam White in Scotland. Lacy Griffith White is also mentioned in his book as the oldest son of Robert. Several other websites also mention Lacy Griffith as Robert's son, such as Boone L. White's website and Charles M. Cole's FTM website.

I have more information on this line, though there is a lot yet to be filled in. I know this is not a direct line of yours. However, if you would like to have any of the material I have on Lacy Griffith's family I would be glad to send it to you if you will send me your address. I'm hoping you will consider, with the extensive coverage of your website of the White family, of adding Lacy Griffith White to your list of Robert's children.

Notes for DAVID WELCH:

David Welch sold approx. 25-30 acres to the "Coalings Company" for use in charcoal production. Timber was cut in approximate 4' lengths and stacked in large piles for burning or smoldering into charcoal. The charcoal was then hauled by wagon to Brownsport Furnace to fire the furnace for iron smelting. Iron ore dug out of area hills was hauled to the furnace area. During this time, 12-15 houses were built at Brownsport for workers. Years later, when Carl Butler, Sr.'s family was sharecroppers at what is near the present J. G. Brasher home, some of the fields there had places where the plowed ground showed evidence of the charcoal burning operations---dark black soil.

Notes for DR. WILLIAM D. JOHNSTON:

Gordon Turner wrote the following in his "History of Scotts Hill, Tennessee."

JOHNSTON, Dr. William D.; C.S.A. No official identification available. Reports indicate that he served as a doctor; other reports indicate that he may have served on his own without official enlistment. Mrs. A. H. Taylor whose family lived near his in the Dunbar area, thinks he was a regular enlisted soldier-physician. Anyway, he died during the war near Clifton from either a wound or dysentery. He had married Sarah Frances White and his body was brought back to White Cemetery near Dunbar for burial. An impressive monument marks the grave. A son, Dr. C. H. Johnston (known as "kit" to many) practiced in his home area for a short time; then in the Shady Hill Community during which he made some calls in and around Scotts Hill. He then moved his practice to Lexington until his death. Known as a very good doctor, Dr. "Kit" never married but among his brothers were: Gus J., Epp and W. D. ("Billy") Jr. Some of us remember Dr. Kit's love for his widowed mother and his passing through Scotts Hill on horseback nearly every weekend to visit her in the old home not far from Dunbar.

261. JOHN CULPEPPER⁷ JAMES (SARAH⁶ HARRELL, AGNES⁵ WHITE, JOSEPH⁴, JOSEPH³, MOSES², ADAM¹) was born October 22, 1821 in Autauga County, AL, and died October 02, 1897 in Grenada County, MS. He married (1) SEMSYL NARRY DAVIS January 08, 1840, daughter of LEVI DAVIS and MARTHA BURKHEAD. She was born November 04, 1822 in South Carolina, and died September 20, 1849 in Grenada County, MS. He married (2) LUCINDA JANE EDMONDSON Abt. 1849 in Grenada County, MS. She was born in Montgomery County, MS. He married (3) MARGARET S. CROCKER November 1864 in Pontotoc, MI.

Notes for JOHN CULPEPPER JAMES:

The following narrative was adapted from a paper by Bell Ross James dated 28 August 1937:

"John Culpepper James was educated in the country schools of Mississippi. As may be supposed, his advantages were not of the best at that early day. He was born 22 Oct 1821. He married three times. His first wife, Symsel (Semsyl) Davis, native of South Carolina, was born 4 Nov 1822, the daughter of Levi and Martha Burkett Davis, also of South Carolina. Mr. and Mrs. Davis moved to Grenada Co., MS and lived there the rest of their lives.

"Mrs. James died in 1849 leaving two children, Isaac (see later) and Reuben. Mr. James' second marriage was in 1850 to Lucinda Edmondson, a native of what is now known as Montgomery County, MS. She was the daughter of Thomas Edmondson, who came from AL to MS and died in the former state while on a visit there. The second Mrs. James died in 1860, leaving one daughter Elizabeth and three sons, Allen, Charley, and William R. A.

"Mr. James' third marriage to Mrs. Margaret S. Ware occurred in Pontoc, MS in November, 1864. She was born in the Lawrence District, SC in 1830, the daughter of Manes and Susamahm Crocker. Mr. Crocker died in 1830, previous to Mrs. James' birth. He was a planter and merchant. Mrs. Crocker moved to Aberdeen, MS and married Mr. Moncrief. Mrs. James came with her mother to MS at the age of nine. Her first marriage was to W. Z. Ware in 1862 while served in the War. She had two children by her first husband, Carrie (who married Monroe Aven) and Willie (who married H. H. Hargrove).

"She and Mr. James had two children, Fannie and Byrd C., who became a prominent Doctor and was a successful planter in the eastern part of Grenada Co. until his death in 1920.

"Mr. James, or "Uncle Cull" as most people called him, told his children how the Sabbaths were spent in the early days. Nearly everyone went fishing or hunting.

"People went ten miles to raise a house, or roll logs. All were the best of friends and no disturbances occurred.

"As a boy, Mr. James would take turns with his brothers during the night to keep the wolves and other wild animals from the pig pens and from carrying off the lambs. He often carried pine knots for a torch for his father to kill deer after night.

"The only mill was a steel mill run by hand. Many of Col. James' days were spent grinding corn for family use. The country was then a vast cane break and stock kept fat the entire year without care.

"In about 1837, the Baptists built a log church, to be known as Pleasant Grove Church, on his father's place. This was attended by people from a radius of ten or twelve miles. At that time, that distance was a long way from home, as everyone had to walk or go in wagons.

"He remembered his first trip to Grenada and would tell his children how he had to hitch his horse to a tree on the east side of Big Bogne Creek, it not being fordable, and how he and his father crossed on a foot log.

"Col. James, as he was familiarly called, was a very interesting conservationist. His reminiscences of pioneer days were very interesting indeed. He served a few months in the Mississippi Militia under Col. W. N. Pass in 1863. [19th Battallion Mississippi State Cavalry, CSA, member of Captain Stewart's Company.]

"He died 7 Oct 1897. At the time of his death he owned 800 acres of good land. He lost heavily during the war. He had been a member of the Pleasant Grove Baptist Church for 37 years. Two of his wives held membership in the same church, and all of his children have been members of this same little church that was built in those early days."

262. AMANDA FRANCES⁷ JAMES (SARAH⁶ HARRELL, AGNES⁵ WHITE, JOSEPH⁴, JOSEPH³, MOSES², ADAM¹) was born Abt. 1829 in Autauga County, AL, and died 1915 in Hackett, Sebastian County, AR. She married WILLIAM MADISON POLLAN 1846 in Yalobusha County, MS, son of GEORGE POLLAN and LUCY MADISON. He was born in Bedford County, TN, and died in Webster County, MS.

Notes for WILLIAM MADISON POLLAN:

After living in Madison and Henderson Counties, William went to Mississippi to attend the University of Mississippi at Oxford to study law. About 1844 he settled in Yalobusha Co., MS, at Coffeetown. William served as County Clerk for a time and then traded extensively in real estate. At one time he owned hundreds of acres of land in that area.

After the Civil War started, William went to Memphis, TN and enlisted in 1863 in the Union Army in Company A, 1st Mississippi Mounted Rifles. He joined the North because he was so bitter against Mississippi seceding from the Union. His six brothers served the South. He was sent to do recruiting duty in the area of the White River in Arkansas. He was discharged June 26, 1865.

After his release from the army he settled in Choctaw County near Belfontaine. An organization was formed about then known as the Ku Klux Klan and they were very bitter against people who had served as William had. It seems that every time they caught him away from home they gave him a terrible beating. About 1868 they gave him an extra severe beating and threw him into a creek. He took pneumonia and died. Amanda Frances later went to Arkansas to live with her children where she died in Hackett in 1915.

268. MARY LAWSON⁷ MCCLUNG (MARGARET⁶ WHITE, JAMES⁵, MOSES⁴, MOSES³, HUGH², ADAM¹) was born May 28, 1792. She married THOMAS LANIER WILLIAMS⁵³ August 05, 1811 in Knox County, TN, son of JOSEPH WILLIAMS and REBECCA LANIER. He was born February 01, 1786 in Surry County, NC, and died December 02, 1856.

Notes for THOMAS LANIER WILLIAMS:

Lawyer, judge, was born in Surry county, N.C. His parents were Joseph and Rebeckah (Lanier) Williams. Four of their sons came to East Tennessee: Alexander to Greeneville, William, merchant, to Strawberry Plains, Colonel John, U.S. Senator, and Judge Thomas L. to Knoxville. Lewis, twin brother of Judge Thomas L., remained in N.C. and was for many years, a congressman from that state. Thomas L. was educated at the University of N.C. where he received a degree in 1808. He then studied law and established an office in Knoxville. He married at Knoxville, August 5, 1811, Polly Lawson McClung, daughter of Charles and Margaret (White) McClung. She was one of the five young women who attended Blount College. Her education was continued at the Moravian school, Salem, N.C. Born May 28, 1792, she was one of the first children born in the town of Knoxville in its first year of existence.

From 1819 to 1825, Williams served three terms in the state senate from Knox County. In 1824, when Hugh Lawson White, Judge of the Supreme Court of TN declined to serve longer, Williams was appointed by the Governor to serve in White's place until a successor could be elected by the legislature. The legislature, however, considering the number of judges sufficient did not elect him, and Judge Williams then resumed the practice of law. In 1836, he was elected first Chancellor for East Tennessee as the courts were organized under the constitution of 1834; he was twice re-elected, serving until 1854. He presided in nineteen counties and held thirty-eight courts a year. He rode horseback, the best way to travel at that time. He "earned a great reputation as a jurist" and his name and fame were known in numerous households. His home in Knoxville was where the Masonic Temple now is on Locust Street. Of his seven children, five daughters lived to be grown and married. Judge Williams died at the home of a sister, near Nashville. A portrait, painted in 1844, by artist Hart, a native of Tennessee, hangs in the Chancery court room in the Knox county court house.

Children of MARY MCCLUNG and THOMAS WILLIAMS are:

- i. REBECCA⁸ WILLIAMS, b. 1812.

Notes for ELEANOR WILSON WHITE:
The Whites of Tennessee

The guns of war were just on the lip of the horizon. Conversations around family dinner tables bristled with the words of conflict, of coming strife, of death in the gray, uncertain months in Knoxville before America's Civil War broke across the mountains. Shouts of political rhetoric in cities across the map, the thump of foot soldiers, and the leathery rattle of mounted cavalry echoed throughout the hills and landscape of East Tennessee, either in fact or imaginations.

But for an 18-year-old whose wealthy parents had died a few years before the present crisis, it was a time of introspection, a time to turn to a personal diary, to write of herself, surroundings, feelings and thoughts on life, her town, future and that of one of the region's most illustrious families.

The personal, hand-written diary of Eleanor (Ellen) Wilson White, daughter of Hugh A.M. White and Elizabeth Humes White, is fascinating for many reasons, but most directly for its insight into Knoxville and the region on the eve of a catastrophic event that eventually played out over four long, hard years. Her diary records a moment in history in the calm just before cannons flared and rifles blasted away peace in the American Civil War fought in a state that was second only to Virginia with the number of fierce battles on its home soil.

The ink and pencil diary, written in a swirling penmanship of a bygone era, was donated to Knoxville's prestigious McClung Historical Collection by a Knoxville family with close ties to the White, Humes and McGhee families. The intent was to preserve properly for all time the marvellous diary writings. The diary donation adds to the already impressive McClung Collection.

Ellen White, born July 31, 1842, was the great-granddaughter of Knoxville founder, James White. James White is the grandson of Moses White, formerly of Inveraray and Lochgoilhead in Argyllshire in the western lowlands of Scotland. Moses White moved to Co Londonderry with his wife, Mary Campbell, in the 17th century. His son, Moses White II, left Ireland in 1741 for Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, and then moved with his wife, Mary McConnell, to Iredell (Rowan County), North Carolina. One of their sons was James White, who married Mary Lawson from North Carolina, founder of Knoxville.

James White, one of the region's most prominent men, captained the North Carolina Militia in the Revolutionary War. It was during that struggle that he learned of a great, lush and abundant wilderness over the mountains into what was then North Carolina.

After the war of America's independence, White took a grant of land from North Carolina for his military service. He travelled to what is now East Tennessee to see for himself this fertile swathe of opportunity. In 1785, he moved his family to the banks of the confluence of the Holston and French Broad Rivers that created the mighty Tennessee River flowing through Knoxville, where his progeny prospered.

White's great-granddaughter Ellen lived with her mother and father at 'Sunnyside,' a two-story, white frame antebellum home, now the site of the University of Tennessee's Jessie Harris Building of Human Ecology. After the death of her mother and father, she remained at the home to care for it and her four sisters.

Her diary, a thin, brown and marbled hardback book, opens: "Aug. 18, 1860, my diary commences." She writes of attending St. John's Episcopal Church in Knoxville to hear the sermons of her uncle Thomas Humes, the church's first rector. Humes' father, also Thomas, was from Armagh, and was from sturdy Scotch-Irish Presbyterian stock, who came to America as a boy. His son Thomas became one of the most authoritative Anglican ministers in the mid-19th century in East Tennessee.

Ellen also recounts splendidly bright days at the 4,000-acre 'Tuskeega,' plantation in Monroe County, south of Knoxville, built by brother-in-law, Charles McClung McGhee, later founder of Lawson McGhee Library, Knoxville.

The marriage of McGhee and Ellen's sister, Cornelia White, joined two of the most politically, financially influential early families in Knoxville and East Tennessee, if not all of the Appalachian region.

Charles McClung McGhee had roots to Ulster. He first married Isabella White, great-granddaughter of James White, and Ellen's sister. She died not long after the marriage, leaving a son. McGhee then married Cornelia White, also Ellen's sister. He became a wealthy financier and eventually inherited about 15,000 acres in the Little Tennessee River Valley, part of the Tuskeega plantation.

Ellen's diary describes shopping sprees in Knoxville and expresses delight in meals of fruit and fresh vegetables with her sisters and other family members. But it is her diary entries in the days before and during the Civil War that are most riveting.

Her words speak for themselves. Portions from her original diary as Ellen White wrote them, provided exclusively for The Ulster-Scot by the McClung Historical Collection, follow: Saturday 27: The war progresses. Troops have been organised and sent off from Sweetwater and Madisonville (small Tennessee villages south of Knoxville).

Jan. 8, Saturday: A whole month has elapsed since I last opened my journal. It was a dreadful rainy day with thunder and lightning. Events have transpired too numerous to mention. Today is Election Day. The news is 'war' all the time. Tennessee will secede today I hope.

Sunday June 9: Tennessee has seceded. Uncle Thomas's congregation has diminished considerably on account of his persistency in praying for (Abraham) Lincoln as President. He said he would continue to do so until Tennessee seceded and then he would either cease to do so or leave the state.

Wednesday 13: Brother James (husband of her sister, Ann) brought news that a party from Roane County was being formed to burn the bridge at Loudon (important river town just east and south of Knoxville) and the company from Knoxville was going down to prevent it. It is horrible! I am afraid we will have fighting right amongst us all.

Saturday 15: Another very warm day. There was a cavalry company come up past our house from Chattanooga (Tennessee) this morning under the Southern flag. There was a man shot in town today - an innocent man. I'll declare I'll soon be afraid to go to town.

Saturday 22: Brother Jimmie brought news last night that the East Tennessee boys had had a fight in Virginia where they have been called at Winchester (near Chattanooga, Tennessee). It seems to me they get nearer and nearer to us every day. No rain yet. I am reading Mes Prisons, by Silvio Pellico.

Thursday 27: Another warm, sunny day. We need rain so much. Brother Jimmie told us tonight we must pray for Jeff Davis' (Confederate States President) success, that the two armies were within a few hours march of each other, that they could hear the drums beat. I hope this battle will result in peace. We heard carriages and buggies rambling down the road tonight.

Saturday June 29: The cavalry company from Monroe County came up this evening. It is called for Brother Charley 'The McGhee Invincibles.(cq)' They were dressed in red flannel and looked very handsomely. We all went down to the gate to see them. One of them hollered "hurrah for Jeff Davis." I said, "hurrah for The McGhee Invincibles!" And then one of them said, "Hurrah for the ladies" and they took off their hats and got ready to hurrah when the captain said, "to move boys."

They were very orderly indeed and made no noise at all. Everyone said they were the handsomiest (cq) company they had seen.

July, Thursday 4: The once Glorious Fourth. Brother Jimmie says he thinks (Gen. P.G.T.) Beauregard will make it a Glorious Day for the Southern Confederacy. The sun shines brighter this morning.

Sunday 21: Bright morning. Brother Jimmie took tea at his father's this evening. He brought news from the telegraph office that there had been a terrible battle at Manassas (Virginia) or Bull Run (Virginia.) Eighty thousand on each side. The great Sherman battery taken by the Confederacy. War still raging it being nine o'clock at night. Much loss on both sides. The enemy repulsed and driven back to Alexandria (Virginia).

Tuesday 23: Beautiful day. The bells were rung in honor of the victory at Manassas. Our forces having defeated the Federalists; with the loss of 7,000 on our side and 30,000 on theirs.

Thursday 25: We received more direct news from the battle today. Camp Turner (local boy) is among the slain. Little Charlie McClung was in the fight but wasn't hurt.

March 19, 1862: I had determined to leave off writing in my journal altogether, but so many events of importance are transpiring every day since I ceased to do so. I have concluded to recommence (cq) it. It rained all day today. The college buildings are filled and running over with soldiers. Five or six soldiers came here for supper-said they had had nothing to eat since yesterday morning. Several soldiers came wanting to get (inside) the barn to sleep in and on being refused one of them 'hoped' the Yankees would catch us all. I hope we will not be disturbed tonight.

April, Saturday 26: The news is that the Federalists have taken New Orleans.

September Thursday 18: The news is our forces have possession of Harper's Ferry.

October Thursday 23: Annie and little James dined with us. We had such a good dinner. Sweet and Irish potatoes, rice, beef and pork and for dessert boiled custard and jelly cake . . . had to wait some time for the government wagons to pass. I never saw so many in my life-just going past all the time in one continuous row. I have been eating too much.

Jan. 1, 1863: Everybody-black and white-except Luice and I left the place today. F cavalry company of Federalists have burned two bridges in or near Bristol (Tennessee). Nearer and nearer they come.

Jan. 2: Brother James says Gen. (Kirby) Smith (Confederate general) was really afraid the Yankees would attack the town last night. I forgot to mention (Gen. Braxton) Bragg (Confederate) had whipped the enemy into Murfreesboro and was fighting still when last heard from.

Monday April 3, 1865: We received news of the fall of Richmond.

That is the final entry in Eleanor Wilson White's diary. Ellen lived out her days at Sunnyside and died, Aug. 29, 1889. She never married.

278. COLONEL JOHN⁷ OVERTON, JR. (*MARY MCCONNELL*⁶ WHITE, *JAMES*⁵, *MOSES*⁴, *MOSES*³, *HUGH*², *ADAM*¹) was born May 26, 1821, and died December 12, 1898. He married (1) RACHEL N. HARDING April 18, 1841 in Nashville, Davidson County, TN. She was born 1824, and died 1843. He married (2) HARRIET VIRGINIA MAXWELL February 28, 1850 in Nashville, Davidson County, TN, daughter of JESSE MAXWELL and MARTHA CLAIBORNE. She died February 1899.

Notes for COLONEL JOHN OVERTON, JR.:

The Maxwell House Hotel, which once stood at the northeast corner of Fourth Avenue, North, and Church Street in downtown Nashville, was for years the center of Nashville's social and political life. Colonel John Overton Jr. built the hotel named for his wife, Harriet Maxwell Overton. Construction of the Maxwell House, designed by Isaiah Rogers, began in 1859 using slave labor. During the Civil War, the partially finished brick building served as both barracks and prison hospital for the occupying Union army.

After the war Overton resumed construction of what became Nashville's largest hotel, which local citizens initially called "Overton's Folly." Opening in the fall of 1869, the five-story, 240-room hotel cost five hundred thousand dollars. The Maxwell House advertised steam heat, gas-lighting, and a bath on every floor. Rooms were four dollars a day, meals included. The building fronted on Fourth Avenue and the infamous Men's Quarter; an entrance for women opened onto Church Street. Eight Corinthian columns flanked the main entrance; the elegant main lobby featured mahogany cabinetry, brass fixtures, gilded mirrors, and chandeliers. There were ladies' and men's parlors, billiard rooms, barrooms, shaving "saloons," and a grand staircase to the large ball or dining room.

The heyday of the Maxwell House Hotel was the 1890s to the early twentieth century. The hotel became famous for its Christmas dinner, which featured such delicacies as Calf's Head, Leg of Cumberland Black Bear, and Tennessee Opossum. Seven presidents stayed at the Maxwell House Hotel: Rutherford B. Hayes, William Henry Harrison, Grover Cleveland, William McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, William Howard Taft, and Woodrow Wilson. Theodore Roosevelt, whose comment that the coffee was "good to the last drop" launched the advertising slogan used for years to promote the nation's first blended coffee. Other visitors included Thomas Edison, Henry Ford, "Buffalo Bill" Cody, General Tom Thumb, Cornelius Vanderbilt, and George Westinghouse. The Maxwell House burned on Christmas night 1961

Colonel Overton died in December of 1898 - in the room in which he was born - and Harriet followed him in February 1899. Their son, May Overton, inherited Travellers Rest and lived there until his death in 1921. He devoted himself to the breeding and racing of horses and the management of Traveler's Rest (as it was spelled at that time and until it came into the ownership of the Colonial Dames). May Overton was very proud of a fine herd of Jersey dairy cattle he raised on the rich fields surrounding Travellers Rest. It is not known what remodeling was done to the house between 1898 and 1920.

Notes for ELIZABETH HUGHES SCOTT:

Between 1945 and 1950 Elizabeth Scott Carrington, a North Carolina native and Alamance County nurse, campaigned with her husband, Dr. George Carrington, for an independent school of nursing at the University of North Carolina. In February 1968 the long-awaited ground breaking ceremonies were held in for the Nursing School's new home: Elizabeth Scott Carrington Hall. Mrs. Scott was responsible for UNC's adoption of a four-year Bachelor of Science degree in Nursing. At her death in 1993, at age 91, the Charlotte Observer said that Elizabeth Scott Carrington " filled the roles of educator, healer, advocate, [and] pioneer."

Notes for STEPHEN ALEXANDER WHITE:

History of the Hawfields Presbyterian Church in Mebane, NC

The few travelers who made their way inland as far as the Haw River in the late 1600's and early 1700's spread the tale of the beauty of the area. It was not long before hearty Scotch-Irish Pioneers drove their cattle and wagons into the region. They gave the general area the name "Haw Old Fields" to designate this as the land flowing gently down the banks of the Haw River. The River received its name from the last syllable of the Saxapahaw or Sissipahaw Indians who lived along its banks and tributaries.

The story of the earliest settlers of the area is, in large measure, cloaked in the midst of the unrecorded past. The settlers, it seems, were more interested in making history than recording it. The early "Haw Old Fields" included the expanse of land between the Haw and Eno Rivers, beginning roughly with the great bend in the Haw that skirts the towns of Burlington and Graham and extending southward to the village of Saxapahaw. As time passed, "Hawfields" came to be more or less identified with the community that worshipped in the church. While the Hawfields community of today occupies only a small portion of the region which originally bore the name, the old church is today the very heart of the original "Haw Old Fields".

The present sanctuary, constructed in 1854, occupies one of three sites used by the congregation over the years. In the beginning, the people gathered for worship under a brush arbor. Later a crude house of worship made of logs was constructed. The site with its adjacent cemetery is located some four miles east of the present church. A granite marker indicates the site.

The center of population shifted westward and the place of worship was moved to a site on the northern edge of the present cemetery (location marked.) The first structure was made from logs. In 1800 this was replaced with a frame building. The present sanctuary is built of hand-made bricks, with the interior woodwork having been hand-dressed by members of the congregation. The structure is essentially the same as it was designed and constructed at a cost of $5,000 in 1854. The present pews are among the original furnishings. The American Presbyterian and Reformed Historical Society has designated the sanctuary as "Historical Site No. 158".

The early members of the church were energetic folk who move aggressively into the future. In 1765, The Reverend Henry Patillo was called to be the first settled minister. Under his forceful leadership the Presbyterian ministers of the region petitioned the Synod of New York and Philadelphia in May of 1770 to request the organization of a new presbytery to serve the area south of Virginia. On September 5, 1770, Orange Presbytery was solemnly organized at Hawfields with The Reverend Henry Patillo being elected the first Moderator. In 1775 The Reverend John DeBow came from Holland (Patillo had come from Scotland) to serve through the troubled years of the American Revolution. The Reverend DeBow was destined to be the first person buried in the "Second Burial Ground" (the present cemetery). The date of his death was September 8, 1783.

The date of construction of the Session House is unknown. It is known, however, that it has been in use by the church and community for over a century. Two generations of boys and girls were educated in the Session House before a public school was organized to serve the area. The passing years have witnessed the construction of additional facilities: 1923, Sunday School Annex, principle donor the Stephen Alexander White Family; 1949, Fellowship Building; 1956, Manse, erected by members of the Scott Family in memory of Robert Walter and Elizabeth Hughes Scott; 1965, Education Building; 1984, the Presbyterian Home of Hawfields, Inc.; 1992, the Hawfields Child Care and Development Center, Inc. The Presbyterian Home of Hawfields is an independent, self-sustaining, non-profit Corporation dedicated to a ministry of care to the aged and disabled. In May 1994, an independent living section, along with a chapel was opened. The Hawfields Church was instrumental in sponsoring and funding early efforts to provide the facility. Currently, Hawfields members are involved in the Home's ministry through service on the Board of Directors, and through opportunities for worship and spiritual nurture. The Home occupies acreage one mile south of the sanctuary on NC-119. Land for the construction of the facility was donated by the late Mrs. Kerr (Mary) Scott.

The people of Hawfields have a history of involvement in the area of political and community leadership. Among those who have distinguished themselves in public service from the church family are sheriffs, representatives in the Provincial Congress, representatives to the State Legislature, leaders in the State Department of Agriculture (the first two county agents to serve in North Carolina were elders of the Hawfields Church), two state governors, and a United States Senator. The tradition of involvement in public service continues today through the membership's participation in a broad range of activities. Eleven persons have entered the ministry from the Hawfields Church. The "Old Church" has also shared in the organization of eight neighboring Presbyterian Churches.

Notes for HAYWOOD W. WHITE:

"Wood White, who lived about one and a half miles Southeast of Shady Hill, on a prong of Cane Creek, and in the old 4th civil district of Henderson county, died Saturday morning, January 26th, 1924, after thirteen days of illness. He was taken ill on the 13th of January with something like colic, afterward drifting into a condition resembling paralysis and nine days before his death began to hiccup from which he never got relief. Mr. White had reached the great age of 82 years--and we can say that these years were filled with all that a well-earned good name can give a man. . . .

Mr. White was an extensive land holder. . . . He was said to be a Methodist in belief but had not joined the church. ["Lexington Progress," February 1, 1924]

Notes for GEORGE FINDLEY MARTIN:

George F. Martin was named for his maternal grandfather, George Findley, who was a Revolutionary War soldier. On September 24, 1967, an article entitled 'Pioneer Recalls Trip to Texas' was published in the Sunday Edition of THE PARIS NEWS. The story included memories of Miss Belle Martin about her family's move from Tennessee to Texas. Sources used in compiling this family information include: the Martin family Bible; Federal Census records a book entitled MANY FOOTPRINTS written by Marie Trent Sterck, 1973; and oral accounts from older family members cemetery records of Decatur County, TN and Lamar County, TX.

473. iii. WILLIAM FIELDING MARTIN, b. November 26, 1864, Decatur County, TN; d. June 20, 1965, San Jose, Santa Clara County, CA.
474. iv. JOHN WESLEY MARTIN, b. December 21, 1866, Decatur County, TN; d. November 03, 1922, Paris, Lamar County, TX.
- v. MARY BELLE MARTIN, b. September 26, 1868, Decatur County, TN; d. January 08, 1968, Paris, Lamar County, TX.

Notes for MARY BELLE MARTIN:

From an unnamed and undated article: 'Pioneer Recalls Trip to Texas - Nine-year-old Belle Martin still remembers how frightened she was when the big river steamer rounded the bend, black smoke boiling from the stack. It was going to take her to Texas, but she didn't want to leave Tennessee. Ninety years later, Miss Belle Martin reasons that it wasn't such a bad move after all. The sprightly, little Paris lady has lived to be a healthy 99 years old in Texas - and observes that 99th birthday with a quiet family observance at her Paris home next Tuesday. At 99, she is a remarkable citizen. The broken hip she suffered at 95 has mended, and she moves about with the support of a walker, often shoving it aside to maneuver on her own. The teeth she utilizes are her original ones. She wears glasses only to read. Her health is excellent. Miss Belle and her two sisters, Fannie and Ella, live in the Martin family home on 19th SW. For the past two years, they've had a housekeeper assist them. But until recently, the three ladies - Belle, to be 99; Ella, 87; and Fannie, 85 - looked after their own household chores. They tended an orchard and garden until six or seven years ago, and had their own cow and chickens until even more recently. The Martin family came to Texas in the 1870's. George Martin gathered his family for the steamboat trip from Decatur, TN, down the Tennessee to the Ohio and to the Mississippi - but the first sight of the steamboat, and the sound of its whistle - almost scattered them again. 'I was terrified,' recalls Miss Belle. 'The Captain shouted, 'All Aboard' and I thought he said we were all going to have to sit on a board. 'Later on, we found bales of peanuts on the boat, and found we could get at them. So we ate peanuts and threw the shells in the Mississippi all the way down to Missouri.' The Martins remained in Missouri a year, but moved on to Texas via covered wagon with two families. They stopped at what now is Ambia in Lamar County. 'The Sheriff, John Gose, took a liking to my dad and told us we could use his farm...' [The rest is missing.] *This article and a picture of the deceased are on file in the Genealogical Society of Northeast Texas Library, in the Taylor Collection, Box M. *On the same stone with Fannie and Ella Martin.

October 10, 1899.

Notes for GEORGE REUBEN SMITH:

Reuben, merchant, was born February 10, 1847, in Decatur County. He was the son of George W. and Jane (White) Smith of Decatur County. George resided in the home place of his father until about 1850, when he moved to Lexington and began merchandising. In 1860, he returned to the farm in Decatur County and lived there 3 years. In 1865, he moved to Decaturville and entered into partnership with Young and Storm, in general merchandising. He remained with this firm until 1874, when he began business with his son Reuben under the name G. W. Smith and Son. He remained in business until his death in December, 1883. John Smith, Reuben's grandfather, came from SC and settled on Panther Creek, 6 miles southwest of Decaturville. Reuben White, the maternal grandfather, came from NC about the same time as John Smith and settled on Rushing Creek, 4 miles south of Decaturville. Reuben Smith was attending school at the outbreak of the war. Soon after its conclusion, he began clerking in the dry goods store of Young, Storm, and Smith, and in 1874, became a partner with his father. In 1867, he married Penelope Yarbrow, daughter of Dr. A.M. Yarbrow. She died May 3, 1883, leaving a family of 6 children : Emma who married William Brasher ; Ernest ; May ; Charlie ; Ella ; and Reuben. February, 1884, Reuben married Flora Jones, daughter of Dr. T. W. Jones of Decaturville. He was a Democrat, a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and a Mason.

Notes for GEORGE BENNETT SMITH:

PFC. GEORGE B. SMITH

Services and final burial for Pfc. George Bennett Smith will be held Friday afternoon at Decaturville. The body of this former Decatur Countian was returned early Thursday to the family home in Decaturville. Services will be conducted by Rev. Charles E. Stewart at the Methodist Church. Burial will be in the Decaturville Cemetery. The Legion post has charge of military ceremonies. His death resulted from a heart attack on March 7, 1945.

He had not been well for some time but was with his unit which was in action north of Manila, Luzon, P.I. He died in an ambulance enroute to a hospital. Temporary interment was in the armed forces cemetery in north Manila. He had been in service 25 months and had served in New Guinea before going to the Philippines. He was 38 at his death.

He had taught in the schools of the county about 15 years. He was principal of the Decaturville elementary school 8 years of this time. He was married to Miss Wilma Ivy of Parsons on March 7, 1941.

He was a son of the late Joseph E. and Maggie Garrett Smith. Two brothers and two sisters survive him. The brothers are Clyde B. Smith of Decaturville and J. Madison Smith of Parsons. The sisters are Mrs. W.S. (Hattie) Dennison of Lexington and Mrs. W.H. (Lola) Volner of near Decaturville.

NANCY PARILEE⁸ WHITE (*HEADLEY COBURN*⁷, *ROBERT*⁶, *HENRY H.*⁵, *JOSEPH*⁴, *JOSEPH*³, *MOSES*², *ADAM*¹) was born August 28, 1846 in Leon County, TX, and died February 12, 1931 in Fowlerton, La Salle County, TX. She married LORENZO DOW YARBROUGH⁶⁷ November 30, 1863 in Oakville, Live Oak County, TX, son of JOHN YARBROUGH and CYNTHIA COKER. He was born January 1840, and died January 05, 1907 in La Salle County, TX.

Marriage License of Live Oak County

State of Texas
County of Live Oak

To any regularly ordained Minister of the Gospel, Judge of the district Court, Chief Justice of the County Court or Justice of the Peace, Greeting

You are hereby authorized to unite in the bonds of Matrimony Lorenzo Dow Yarbrough and Nancy White agreeable to the Laws of this State, and of this license make due return within sixty days as the Law directs -

Given under my hand and the seal of the County Court of said County at Oakville this 27th day of November AD 1863

S Mapes Clerk C C L O C
pme James Givens Depty

State of Texas County of Live Oak

I hereby Certify that the rites of matrimony was solemnised between the within named parties, Loranzo Dow Yarborough and Nancy White on the 30th day of November A D 1863.

Addison Lane J. P.
Live Oak County

(Note: the Deputies name James has been written in shorthand on the original. There are some letters before James Givens that I really can't make out, but I think they are possible shorthand for "presence of me" (pme). The surname might be Grover, but I think that it is Givens. I believe the county clerk to be Samuel Mapes.)

Lorenzo Dow Yarbrough went to McMullen Co., TX circa 1860 with his father, John Swanson Yarbrough, and step mother, Franics. Dow was born January 1840 in Houston Co., TX, a son of John Swanson and Cynthia Yarbrough. The Yarbrough family lived in Gonzales Co. TX from circa 1850 - 1855. By circa 1856 the family appears in Atascosa County. In McMullen County the Yarbrough family settled on a bend of the Frio River that became the first settlement of the county named Yarbrough's Bend. Dow died on January 05, 1907 in La Salle Co., TX.

Because McMullen Co. was not officially organized until 1877 there remained no county seat for the county. Until 1877 all legal matters were recorded in neighboring Live Oak County. Most McMullen county citizens obtained their marriage licenses at Oakville in neighboring Live Oak County. In some instances McMullen county citizens obtained their marriage license in neighboring Atascosa county. This accounts to the fact of Dow and Nancy having filed for a marriage license in neighboring Live Oak County.

Nancy White, daughter of Headley Coburn White and Lydia J. Wright, was born August 28, 1846 in Leon Co., TX. The White family was recorded on the 1860 Karnes Co., TX census, but apparently were living in McMullen or Live Oak county area by 1863. In the early 1870s the family may have been living in Wilson Co. By 1880 the family was listed on the McMullen Co. census next to Dow and Nancy. Nancy died on February 12, 1931 in, La Salle Co., TX.

We know that Dow and Nancy probably remained in McMullen County up until 1884 when Dow purchased a lot in the town of Tilden. By 1890 the family may have already moved into neighboring La Salle County, as one of their daughter's marriage licenses was recorded there. The family is listed on the 1900 La Salle Co. census and some of their grown children are found to be living near them. In 1906 Dow filed for his civil war pension in McMullen Co. and unfortunately, it wasn't approved until March 1907, nearly 3 months after his death. In May 1907 Nancy filed for a civil war widow's pension that was approved in September 1907. In March 1908 Nancy bought a lot in the Davenport addition in the town of Cotulla, La Salle Co.

Both Dow and Nancy Yarbrough are buried in the Old Cotulla Cemetery in Cotulla, La Salle Co., TX. Dow's grave is marked with a civil war headstone while there is no headstone for Nancy.

Notes for LORENZO DOW YARBROUGH:

Lorenzo Dow Yarbrough

by Renee Smelley

Lorenzo Dow Yarbrough was born January 1840, probably in Houston Co., TX, the son of John Swanson, Sr. and Cynthia Unknown Yarbrough. Dow, as his family and friends called him, was known to have lived with his family in Houston, Gonzales, Atascosa, and McMullen Counties, Texas. He very likely attended school in Gonzales County with his sister Mandy and stepbrother's Jim Tope and John Moore.

About 1858 when Dow was 19 years old he moved to McMullen from Atascosa County with his family. They settled on a bend of the Frio River with about 30 other families. This was the first settlement of McMullen County and was named Yarbrough Bend after Dow's father Swanson Yarbrough. He lived there for about three years, until 1861, when he enlisted in the Confederate States Army at Fort Brown, Brownsville, Texas on 23 September. He served first in Captain William G. Gobin's Company, 2nd Regiment, Texas Mounted Rifles, stationed at Helena. He was then transferred to Company K, 2nd Texas Cavalry, under Captain John Donaldson. He is found to be listed on the 2nd Reg't Texas Mounted Rifles Rolls for years 1861 and 1862 and 2nd Reg't Texas Cavalry Rolls for the years 1863, 1864, & 1865. Notes on the rolls say that the 2nd Regiment Texas

Calvary was also known as the 2nd Regiment Texas Mounted Rifles. The Second Texas Cavalry was originally organized in the spring of 1861 under designation of the Second Texas Mounted Rifles. It was reorganized with all the same officers and enlisted men and at that time it was redesignated the Second Texas Cavalry. Dow appeared on a list of killed and wounded, in an engagement on the Nueces River, near Fort Clark Texas, August 10, 1862, as having a wound in the left hip, a wound that would continue to give him trouble until his death.

He was home on furlough in 1863, when on November 30, he married, in Live Oak County, Miss Nancy Parilee White. She was born on August 28, 1848 in Leon County, Texas, daughter of Headley Coburn "Henry" White and Lydia Wright.

Dow and Nancy are known to have lived in McMullen County, TX where it is expected that most or perhaps all of their children were born. Dow bought a lot of land in block # 36 in the town of Tilden from James Lowe and wife M. J. Lowe in Tilden, McMullen Co., Texas on 16 day of July 1884.

Nine known children were born to Dow and Nancy:

(1) Selitha Y. Yarbrough was born December 1864, married December 27, 1883, McMullen County to Samuel H. Ratcliff.

(2) John Swanson Yarbrough born March 12, 1866 near Tilden, McMullen Co., TX, married Jane "Janie" Louise Crawford on May 14, 1891 in Corizzo Springs, Dimmit Co., TX.

(3) Betty Ann Yarbrough, born August 3, 1869 married Thomas Clinton "Clint" Edwards on May 15, 1888 in Tilden, McMullen Co., TX.

(4) Anthony Headley "Tone" Yarbrough, born about 1873, married Maggie Maples Kaminski.

(5) Nancy Parilee Yarbrough, born April 28, 1877 in Tilden, McMullen Co., TX, married Valentine Harris Tilley on June 1, 1898 in LaSalle Co., TX.

(6) Jonathan David "Dave" Yarbrough, born April 1881, didn't marry.

(7) Lidia "Lidy" Yarbrough, born after 1880 married Mr. Booth.

(8) Alevia "Levi or Leavie" Yarbrough, born July 20, 1882, married John Allen "Pete" Blakeney on August 31, 1902/03 in Hope, Eddy Co., NM

(9) Lorenzo Skid Yarbrough, born August 24, 1885, married Maggie Jane Cleary on April 2, 1908 in La Salle Co., TX.

Dow and Nancy were living in LaSalle Co., TX by the 1900 census with their children Alevia and Lorenzo Skid. Other families living nearby were their children John Swanson & Janie (Crawford) Yarbrough, Samuel & Selitha (Yarbrough) Ratcliff, Clint & Betty Ann (Yarbrough) Edwards and Dave Yarbrough was living in the household of his brother John Swanson. Nancy's mother, Lydia Wright White was living in the household of her son Lorenzo D. White and another son Headly White lived with his family nearby as well. Other families in the vicinity are Oran and Tennessee Althea "Tennie" (White) Winters, Josiah & Elizabeth (Owings) Yarbrough, Joe & Nina (McDonald) Yarbrough, William & Jeanie (Wilson) Yarbrough and James & Elizabeth "Bettie" Davenport.

"Family Tradition" from my grandmother Carmen has also stated that around 1901 Dow and Nancy traveled by wagon train to New Mexico somewhere around Eddy County to see about a homestead from New Mexico, but returned, shortly after, back to Texas. We do know that Alevia did travel to New Mexico and circa 1902 married Pete Blakeney in Eddy County, NM, and raised her family there, but it is not exactly known if she was with her parents when she went.

Dow Yarbrough filed for his Civil War pension June 28, 1906. Dow states that he is 67 years old, he resides in McMullen County and has lived in Tilden for 40 years. He is not working at the time and his physical condition is not good. He states he suffers from old age and that he was shot during the war in the leg. He also states that he enlisted in 1861 and served until the close of the war. He states he owns 1 mule worth $50., 1 horse worth $50., and 1 wagon worth $25. It appears that this was a long drawn out process where many Affidavits were taken. Notable affidavits were taken from Daniel T. Winters of Big Foot, Frio Co., TX and Jas. H. Tope of McMullen Co., TX to help prove that Dow actually served in the Civil War. Dow's civil war pension was finally approved on March 25, 1907, more than 2 months after his death.

Dow Yarbrough died January 5, 1907 and his grave is marked with a civil war military stone. Nancy White purchased a home from Bettie Davenport on March 11, 1908 in the town of Cotulla, TX county of LaSalle. Nancy died December 2, 1931 and was buried without a headstone. They are both buried in the Old Cotulla cemetery in Cotulla, Texas. Their son and daughter n law, John Swanson & Janie (Crawford) Yarbrough, and son Dave Yarbrough are also buried on the same row without headstones.

Notes: Bettie Davenport is Don Crawford's grandmother and in 1908 after Dow's death Nancy purchased a home and lot from Bettie. James H. Tope, a.k.a. Jim Tope, and John M. Moore are the sons of Frances Unknown Tope Moore Yarbrough, third known wife of John Swanson Yarbrough. Daniel T. Winters states he is 64 years old in 1907 and may be the son of Orrin and Susannah (Elroy) Winters.

Notes for NICHOLAS DAVID WELCH:

Nick David Welch (1867-1947) was born and raised in Decatur County. His parents were David Welch and Harriett Welch and his grandparents were Nicholas and Nancy Welch. Nick Married Mary Josephine Lacy (1867-1945). Mary's parents were John L. and Susan F. Lacy. Besides Nick, David and Harriet had three sons: Lynn, George and James. Besides Mary, John L. and Susan had three sons: Grundy, Thomas and Hale and one daughter Elizabeth.

Nick farmed for many years on land northeast of Decaturville. He and Mary had two sons, Willie "Hound" and Thomas Clayton and four daughters: Alpha, Neely Mae, Edna and Winnie. His son Thomas served in the infantry of the US Army during WWI from June 24, 1918, to Sept. 14, 1918, and died in England from wounds received in battle in Europe. Thomas's body was returned to Decaturville and buried in Decaturville Cemetery. During the 1930s Nick and Mary made annual visits to Hot Springs, AR to bathe in the hot baths for health reasons. They had numerous grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

In 1926 Nick purchased several acres of land and a house on Route 2 in the northern section of Decaturville from Roy N. Stout. After he retired from farming, he continued to garden and kept chickens and a cow until his death.

403. HUGH LAWSON⁸ MCCLUNG, JR. (HUGH LAWSON⁷, MARGARET⁶ WHITE, JAMES⁵, MOSES⁴, MOSES³, HUGH², ADAM¹) was born June 02, 1858, and died April 25, 1936. He married ELLA L. GIBBINS December 15, 1892, daughter of WILLIAM GIBBINS and ELLEN HENRY.

Notes for HUGH LAWSON MCCLUNG, JR.:

Lawyer, jurist, was born in Jefferson Co., TN, the son of Hugh Lawson and Anna (Gillespie) McClung. He was the grandson of Charles McClung, (q.v.) and a great grandson of James White, founder of Knoxville (q.v.). His mother was a granddaughter of General Landon Carter. While Hugh was very young, the family moved to Knoxville to make a permanent home there. After receiving his elementary education from tutors, he entered the University of Tennessee and, in 1877, was graduated with the B.A. degree. After a year in Texas, he returned to begin the study of law in the office of his brother-in-law, Major Thomas Shepard Webb. He was admitted to the bar in 1879 and he and Major Webb at once formed a partnership which lasted until 1908, when McClung withdrew. He was appointed a special justice in the Supreme court of Tennessee by Governor Benton McMillin. In March 1909, he was appointed chancellor of the chancery division of Knox county, by Governor Patterson, and held office until the fall of 1910 when he retired from the practice of law. He served as president of the Holston Bank five years. For a number of years Judge McClung was president of the East Tennessee Female Institute and from 1897 to 1920, served as a trustee of the University of Tennessee, as his father and grandfather had previously done. Though he was a Democrat in politics, he was not partisan, but exceedingly liberal and open-minded.

On December 15, 1892 he married Ella L. Gibbins, daughter of William E. and Ellen (Henry) Gibbins of Knoxville. Ellen, their only child, married Thomas H. Berry. Judge McClung traveled widely and his interests in his later years were his travels, his books and his beautiful estate on Black Oak Ridge.

Child of HUGH MCCLUNG and ELLA GIBBINS is:

- i. ELLEN LAWSON⁹ MCCLUNG⁷⁴, m. THOMAS H. BERRY.

Notes for ELLEN LAWSON MCCLUNG:

Ellen McClung Berry was born to Judge Hugh Lawson McClung, Jr., and Ella Gibson McClung. Her father was the fourth generation of McClungs to serve on the Board of Trustees, and her grandfather was the founder of Knoxville, James White. Berry and her husband Thomas H. Berry donated the fountain in the McClung Plaza at the University of Tennessee. They were both patrons to the arts, and there is a Quasi-Endowment for Professors of Art named after her

- ii. ISABELLE WELCKER, b. 1855.
- iii. ALBERT GALLATIN WELCKER, JR., b. 1857.

407. ISABELLA⁸ WHITE (HUGH ALEXANDER⁷, MOSES⁶, JAMES⁵, MOSES⁴, MOSES³, HUGH², ADAM¹) was born July 10, 1827, and died May 13, 1848. She married CHARLES MCCLUNG MCGHEE, son of JOHN MCGHEE and BETSY MCCLUNG. He was born June 23, 1828.

Child is listed above under (401) Charles McClung McGhee.

408. CORNELIA HUMES⁸ WHITE (HUGH ALEXANDER⁷, MOSES⁶, JAMES⁵, MOSES⁴, MOSES³, HUGH², ADAM¹) was born February 04, 1836, and died February 03, 1903. She married CHARLES MCCLUNG MCGHEE, son of JOHN MCGHEE and BETSY MCCLUNG. He was born June 23, 1828.

Children are listed above under (401) Charles McClung McGhee.

409. JACKSON MAY⁸ OVERTON (JOHN⁷, MARY MCCONNELL⁶ WHITE, JAMES⁵, MOSES⁴, MOSES³, HUGH², ADAM¹) was born February 17, 1856, and died March 27, 1920. He married NANNIE HENSLEY October 18, 1877 in Nashville, Davidson County, TN, daughter of HENRY HENSLEY and RACHEL ANDERSON. She was born 1855, and died 1890.

Notes for JACKSON MAY OVERTON:

Jackson May Overton, age 64, died in March of 1920 as a result of an accident. As he died "intestate" the property was divided four ways with his children. His daughter, Harriet Williams, inherited the house and approximately 100 acres. The overall acreage was reduced to the point that substantial farming became impractical.

Children of JACKSON OVERTON and NANNIE HENSLEY are:

- i. RACHEL⁹ OVERTON, b. September 05, 1878.
- 572. ii. JOHN OVERTON, b. October 17, 1880; d. February 26, 1944.

Richmond Pearson Hobson was one of the great heroes of the Spanish-American War, following only Theodore Roosevelt and George Dewey. Hobson's fame and popularity was the result of leading an unsuccessful attempt to block the harbor of Santiago de Cuba by sinking the collier MERRIMAC in the entrance.

Hobson was born August 17, 1870, in Greensboro, Alabama. His father was a Confederate veteran of the American Civil War, and the family lived on the family estate of Hobson's mother, a plantation called "Magnolia Grove". He was the second of seven children. Young Richmond attended private school, and the Southern University in Greensboro from 1882 to 1885. He won a competitive test for appointment to the Naval Academy at age fourteen.

At Annapolis, Richmond was the youngest in his class. His strong religious views created difficulties for him with classmates. Midshipman Hobson was later put in "coventry", or cut off from all social contact with his classmates, for putting some of the other students on report. He spent his last two years in this state of isolation. However bad his social situation, his academic life flourished. During his years at the Academy Hobson never ranked lower than third in his class. He also developed an interest in steam engines and naval architecture.

Hobson graduated from Annapolis in 1889, ranked first in his class. He was offered the opportunity to study naval architecture abroad and did so, in Paris at the Ecole National Supérieure des Mines in 1890 and 1891. This was followed by studies at the Ecole d'Application du Génie Maritime from 1891 to 1893, where he graduated "with distinction."

After his return to the United States, Hobson served for a year and a half as an assistant naval constructor in the Navy Department's Bureau of Construction and Repair at Washington D.C. He attempted to get a posting to Asia during the Sino-Japanese War, and also to Europe, but his requests were denied. Instead, Hobson was sent aboard the USS NEW YORK, and served in various shipyards in the northeast. During this time, a superior officer accused Hobson of neglect of duty for accepting some defective metal castings. He was eventually vindicated by Acting Secretary of the Navy, Theodore Roosevelt.

In 1897, Hobson created and ran the third year program for naval construction at Annapolis. As war loomed, the entire class went to Key West, Florida to continue the students' education with the North Atlantic Squadron. It was while serving with Admiral Sampson on the USS NEW YORK that Hobson was given the task of sinking the MERRIMAC to block the entrance to Santiago Harbor. The effort failed and Hobson was taken prisoner. He was exchanged on July 6, 1898, and, to his surprise, found himself a national hero.

After the war, Hobson had himself appointed Inspector of Spanish Wrecks, charged with determining if any of the damaged and sunken Spanish vessels at Cuba could be raised and reused. He succeeded in raising the REINA MERCEDES and the INFANTA MARIA TERESA. Hobson next went to the Far East to continue his salvage efforts with the victims of Dewey's attack. Here he salvaged the ISLE DE CUBA, ISLE DE LUZON and DON JUAN DE AUSTRIA. On his way to the Philippines, Hobson, still the popular war hero, was accused of kissing his way across the United States as he accepted the requests of ladies to be kissed. When the press began making an issue of it an embarrassed Hobson refused all future requests. Hobson's hero status also created tension with his fellow officers, many of whom avoided him. About this time, he began to suffer from inflammation of the retina, which was aggravated by exposure to sunlight and desk work. Hobson requested a medical discharge beginning in 1900. The request was denied.

In 1901 Congress passed a joint resolution thanking Hobson for his exploits aboard the MERRIMAC. The resolution promoted him from Lieutenant to Captain, and also advanced him ten positions on the Construction Corps seniority list. This action served to make Hobson even more of an outcast among his fellow officers, who resented the preferential treatment. He resigned his commission in 1903.

Hobson's departure from the Navy gave him time for other pursuits also. In 1905 he married Grizelda Houston Hull, the great-great niece of Confederate general Leonidas Polk, the great niece of former Alabama governor, George Houston, and a cousin of General "Fightin' Joe" Wheeler. These connections would serve him well in political life.

As a civilian, Hobson took up the lecture circuit, traveling across the country in 1903 and 1904. In 1907, on his second attempt, the former Captain was elected to Congress, serving four terms. In 1908, before an unfriendly Democratic National Convention, Hobson commented that President Theodore Roosevelt had stated that there was a good possibility of war with Japan in the near future. Roosevelt denied the comments. With his Great White Fleet preparing to sail around the world, talk of trouble with Japan, either military or diplomatic, was not appreciated by the President. In spite of the acrimonious debate, Hobson continued predicting war with Japan until even the press tired of reporting his comments on the issue.

Congressman Hobson served on the Naval Affairs Committee from 1907 to 1914, working to strengthen the fleet and warning of future clashes with European powers, Japan and Russia. He was an early supporter of Womens' Suffrage and fought for Black soldiers unjustly accused of rioting and killing a civilian in Brownsville Texas. In 1911, he introduced the first National Prohibition bill. Hobson's views, unpopular with many of his constituents, ended his political career in 1916.

Later in life, Hobson continued to act against alcohol and drug abuse, serving as general secretary of the American Alcohol and Education Association, president of the International Narcotic Education Association and the World Narcotic Defense Association. He was also the organizer of the 1926 World Conference on Narcotic Education.

In 1933, Hobson was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for his actions aboard the MERRIMAC during the Spanish-American War. His crew had received the medal in 1899, but officers were not eligible for the honor at that time. In 1934, Hobson was made a Rear Admiral on the retired list and granted a pension.

Richmond Pearson Hobson died of a heart attack on March 16, 1937, and was buried with honors in Arlington National Cemetery.

On January 22, 1942, the U.S. Navy commissioned a destroyer named in Richmond Hobson's honor, the DD-464 HOBSON. The vessel saw extensive action throughout World War Two, in the Atlantic, Mediterranean, and Pacific theaters of operations. She was awarded six battle stars and shared in a Presidential unit Citation. She was lost in 1952 after a tragic collision with the aircraft carrier, USS WASP.

Notes for JOSEPH BAILEY TAYLOR:

Joseph moved to Henderson County while a young man, working first at a stave mill in Ebenezer and then moved to Decatur County to work in Perryville. He married Margaret "Maggie" Isabelle Middleton of the Ebenezer Community on November 30, 1899. Maggie was the daughter of Dr. John Alexander Middleton and his wife Emily Jane White. They were the parents of 8 children. Both Joseph and Maggie are buried in Scotts Hill Cemetery.

From Lillye Younger, The History of Decatur County Past and Present (Southaven, MS: Carter Printing Company, 1978), pp. 413-415.

Joseph Bailey Taylor, born in Shelby County December 31, 1867 moved to Henderson County while a young man and worked at a Stave mill at Ebenezer and Perryville. Formally he had worked as a streetcar conductor in Memphis.

He met and fell in love with Margaret (Maggie) Isabelle Middleton of the Ebenezer community. She was the daughter of Dr. John Alexander Middleton and Emily Jane White. Born January 30, 1873. She became the wife of Joseph Bailey Taylor on November 30, 1899. To this union eight children were born, three girls and five boys.

Aside from public work, Mr. Taylor became a farmer and farmed both in Decatur County and Henderson County. They lived in Decatur County from 1927 until 1934, later moving a short distance east of Scotts Hill. He also worked at Pratt's cotton gin as a fireman of a steam boiler on the side. The couple did an outstanding job of rearing the big family. So like the old saying "Cleanliness is next to Godliness" Mrs. Taylor as well as her daughters and even sons are immaculate housekeepers. The father passed away on September 6, 1938 and the mother died July 3, 1966. In later life Mrs. Taylor made her home with a daughter, Agnes Taylor, single, after she became incapacitated. Agnes lived in Jackson. Both parents are buried in Scotts Hill Cemetery.

The first one to bless the couple's home was Virgil, born September 24, 1900 with Charlie next who was born January 20, 1903. Then came Agnes, born March 20, 1905 and Ernest who was born June 6, 1907 then Opal who was born May 29, 1909. Malcolm Bailey (Mack) was born August 17, 1911. Last but not least in love and affection the couple had twins, Mae and Ray, born February 9, 1914. Virgil, an employee at Madison County Courthouse in Jackson, married Geraldine Sansom in 1931. They are the parents of two children, Joyce Ann, who married Norwood Jones and Joseph Lawrence Taylor, married to Norma Richardson. They have a son named Mark. Joyce and Norwood are the parents of a son and daughter, Randy, who married Nelda Mathis and Leigh Ann, single, completing her college career. Parents and children live in Jackson, Tennessee.

Charley, a retired car salesman, married Bessie Austin of Scotts Hill in 1924 and they are the parents of two sons, Charles Austin Taylor, married to Leona Ogle and Norris Lee who married Charlotte Schrinner.

Agnes, single, retired saleslady born March 20, 1905 worked at the Scotts Hill Telephone Company as an operator when the town owned the Telephone company.

Later she moved to Jackson where she was employed as a Saleslady until her retirement. She lives at 349 Greenwood Street in Jackson.

Charles and Leona have a daughter, Cathey Ann, who married John Cox. The couple live in Memphis. Norris Lee has a son, Steve and a daughter, Cindy and they make their home in Houston, Texas.

Opal, dietician at Henderson County Hospital, married Wylie Z. (Bill) Kelley of Scotts Hill in 1931. They had two sons, Joe Bailey, who married Brenda McPeake and Billy Wayne who married Judy Phillips. Joe Bailey and Brenda have a daughter, Shelia and a son Jeffery McPeake, who are students at Lexington Schools. Billy and Judy have a daughter, Donna Jill and a son Billy Jr. single. Donna Jill married Charles Stanford. Wylie Z. (Bill) passed away October 11th 1977 at Jackson Madison County Hospital and was buried in Lexington cemetery.

Malcolm Bailey (Mack), a farmer born August 17, 1911 married Lois Johnson, daughter of Hubert and Mittie Todd Johnson in 1931. They had a son, Jerry, who married Edith Davis of Parsons and a daughter, Marjorie, who married Wilburn Maness of Lexington. Jerry and Edith are the parents of a daughter, Renee, who is a freshman at Jackson State Community College in Jackson, Tennessee, Greg, A college graduate and James Malcolm, student at Riverside High School. The parents live on highway 100 near Decaturville and Jerry is a mail carrier and Edith teaches at Riverside High School. Majorie and Wilburn live in Lexington and are the parents of a son Rondal, a high school graduate. Lois Taylor passed away December 13, 1969.

Ernest a farmer married Fans Montgomery of Scotts Hill in 1931 and they are the parents of a son Harold, who lives in Jackson. He married Peggy Sykes and they are the parents of two children, Terry Lynn, single and Janet Ernestine who married Clyde Boren. They live in Jackson.

Callie Mae, born February 9, 1914, married Don Barrett, deceased. They had two daughters, Carolyn and Judy. Carolyn married Hilton Crawford and they are the parents of three children, Vickie, Larry and Rhonda. They live in Houston, Texas. Judy is single.

William Ray, born February 9, 1914 married Opal Taylor in 1951. They are the parents of a daughter, Lisa Carol who married Larry Riddell, and they have a daughter, Lisa Carol and a son Larry Ray, who attend Jackson Schools. They live in Jackson. Ray is employed at Wilbert Vault Company in Jackson.

Margaret (Maggie) Isabelle Middleton sisters and brothers married the following: Roxie Middleton married Robin Helms, Alfred Haywood, Middleton, born in 1868 married Ida Jones December 21, 1894 and a second time to Laura Denton.

Mary Frances Middleton, born in 1870 married Will Wyatt., William Cook Middleton, born April 28, 1871 married Pairlee Jane Jones December 20, 1896.

Martha Caroline Middleton, born in 1875, married Will Crosser. After the death of Will Crosser she married George White.

Alfred Middleton, father of John Middleton, gave the land for Ebenezer Cemetery and he was the first one to be buried there.

Notes for WILLIAM HERMAN WHITE:
History of Scotts Hill

Scotts Hill is located half in Decatur County and half in Henderson County. It was in 1825 that Cager Micajah Scott moved to Tennessee from North Carolina and settled at this locality. He opened the first store and the town was named in his honor. Although it isn't located on a high hill, it is in the hill country, therefore the name Scotts Hill was chosen. He opened the first store and the town was named in his honor. The old stage road ran through town.

With the introduction of the stage coach came the postal service. The stage coach carried both passengers and mail. When the coach stopped, the passengers would alight and tour the town while the postmaster sorted the mail. A horn sounded when the stage was ready to depart. Ephram Austin was perhaps the first postmaster of Scotts Hill. He also built the first grist mill and the first cotton gin. In 1880, a hotel was opened by Mr. Riley. Other hotel operators were J. S. Turner, George Davis, Mary White, Elsie Auston, and Ellar Mitchell.

About 1895, the Scotts Hill College was built. Students came from near and far to attend this then famous school. B. A. Tucker headed the school until his death in 1903.

History of Beacon, TN

Beacon, a town of about 150 citizens, four miles west of Parsons, was first known as "Moray." When the Tennessee Midland Railroad Company Line came through Decatur County, the name was changed to Beacon.

The once thriving little town had a post office, depot, doctors office, barber shop, mercantile stores, blacksmith shops, grist mill, telephone company, tomato shed, school, churches and a cafe. Mercantile operators here have been Jess Long, Will Dodd, Ike Smith, Ches Myracle, and Glen Tolley. Charley Thomas and Jess Long operated the two cotton gins and the black smith shops were operated by Jim Bartholomew and Riley Hobbs as well as grist mills. Bill O'Guinn owned the home telephone company and the operators were Miss Ethel Hayes and her sister Miss Carrie Hayes.

The economy was boosted in the town by the sale of tomatoes around the 1920's. During harvesting, a tomato shed was operated and anyone in the community who wanted work was engaged in wrapping tomatoes which were shipped to market on the "peevine" train.

The Baptist church and the Church of Christ have been established for many decades.

A famous baseball team here usually furnished entertainment at the 4th of July picnics. Neighboring citizens from Parsons would go up on the train and attend the fun and frolics.

A flour mill located one mile south of Beacon on Beach River, was known as Dixie Flour Mill.

The meeting place for the residents was the post office, which has been located in numerous places during the towns history. Business men usually served as postmasters and the post office was located in their stores.

Early settlers of Beacon include Chumneys, Wallaces, Longs, Hayes, McCormicks, Douglas, O'Guinns, Keens, and Myracles.

An old cemetery is located here, long forgotten by the descendants. One very important character, Henry Myracle, founder of Parsons, is buried here, as well as many others.

On March 16th 1942, Beacon was partially destroyed by a cyclone. There was only one casualty, Bill O'Quinn, a senior citizen was killed. His wife was injured, however she survived. Now the hub of Beacon is the Beacon Community Center.

This historical information is mainly from the Decatur County History Book.

He married (1) ANNIE MCGHEE March 03, 1881, daughter of CHARLES MCGHEE and CORNELIA WHITE. She was born November 07, 1862, and died September 01, 1898. He married (2) BARBARA ADAIR 1905.

Notes for CALVIN MORGAN MCCLUNG:

Merchant, collector of local historical materials, was born in St. Louis, Missouri, the son of Franklin Henry and Eliza Ann (Mills) McClung. He was of Scotch Irish descent, his ancestor, Matthew McClung (son of Charles) . . . C.M. McClung attended private schools and East Tennessee University. He received the degree of A.B. in 1874 and the M.A. in 1877. After two years as a special student of chemistry at Yale University, he received the degree of Ph.D. in 1876. In 1877 he entered the wholesale firm of Cowan, McClung and Company. Five years later he purchased the controlling interest in a hardware firm which became C.M. McClung and Company. He was its president from 1905 until his death. His interest were many and varied. He was a director of the East Tennessee National Bank and of the Knoxville Cotton Mills. He was a trustee of Lawson McGhee Library from its founding until his death. From 1909-1915 he wa a trustee of the Tennessee School for the Deaf. He was greatly interested in early history and genealogy and amassed a valuable library of local history which included material on many states connected with Tennessee and its people. Upon his death in 1919, this library was presented by his widow to the Lawson McGhee Library. He was a member of the Tennessee Historical Society and the American Historical Association.

In 1881, McClung married Annie McGhee, daughter of Col. Charles M. McGhee. She died in 1898, leaving two daughters, now Mrs. William Cary Ross, of Knoxville, and Mrs. Thomas Melish, of Cincinnati. In 1905, he married Barbara Adair, of Atlanta, who survives.

Calvin M. McClung, who as trustee for many years (Lawson McGhee Library) exerted a progressive influence on Knoxville's library development, died March 12, 1919. His valuable and extensive private library devoted to the history of Tennessee and the south was given to Lawson McGhee Library by his wife, Mrs. Barbara Adair McClung. Since the presentation ceremony on June 15, 1921, the McClung Historical Collection, which occupies a special room on the lower floor of the library building, has become nationally known and has attracted to Knoxville many students of history and genealogy from other states.

Children of CALVIN MCCLUNG and ANNIE MCGHEE are:

- i. ELIZA MILLS¹⁰ MCCLUNG, b. August 17, 1882; m. WILLIAM CARY ROSS, December 02, 1902; b. March 31, 1879.
- ii. MAY LAWSON MCCLUNG, b. September 30, 1885.

Notes for LAWRENCE DAVIS TYSON:

Born 4 July 1861 on a farm near Greenville, Pitt County, North Carolina, Lawrence Davis Tyson attended the country schools on his father's plantation until he entered the academy at Greenville in 1873. His lifelong involvement in the military began with his enrollment at West Point in 1879. Graduating in 1883, Tyson was commissioned second lieutenant of the United States Army and assigned to the Ninth Infantry. In September 1883, he began twelve years of active military duty at Fort D. A. Russell, Cheyenne, Wyoming, where he met Bettie Humes McGhee. Daughter of Charles McGhee, a leading railroad financier of the South, Bettie married Lawrence in February 1886. During their early married life the Tysons were stationed chiefly in the West, but spent one year (1888-1889) at a recruiting station in New York. Tyson subsequently spent two years in Arizona and New Mexico participating in campaigns against the Apaches. Tyson served his last four years of active duty (1891-1895) as a professor of military science at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

While at the University, Tyson shifted his life's course from the military to a career in the private sector, when he earned a bachelor's degree in law in 1894. He resigned his commission in 1896 in order to practice law in Knoxville and quickly diversified his interests to take advantage of the expanding industrial opportunities of the New South. At the outbreak of the Spanish-American War in 1898, Tyson was president of the Nashville Street Railway Company, and, in 1899, he organized the Knoxville Spinning Company. War, however, briefly interrupted Tyson's business pursuits. He volunteered for service in 1898, recruited and trained the 6th Regiment, United States Volunteer Infantry, and took them to Puerto Rico. Tyson stayed there for several months as military governor of the north-central portion of that island, joined briefly by Bettie and their two children, Charles McGhee Tyson (b. 1889) and Isabella McGhee Tyson (b. ca.1893), after peace was declared in 1899. Before the year was out, the family returned to Knoxville.

In the years following the Spanish-American War, Tyson expanded his business interests beyond textile production and railroads to coal and iron mining, banking, and manufacturing. He became president of Poplar Creek Coal and Iron Company, East Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, Lenoir City Land Company, Southern Valve and Gear Company; vice president of Roane Iron Company, Cambria Coal Mining Company, Coal Creek Mining and Manufacturing Company; and director of two banks and several other corporations.

Tyson's career in politics began in 1903 when he was elected to the Tennessee House of Representatives and chosen speaker (1903-1905). During this period he continued to use his military training as inspector general of the Tennessee National Guard. In 1913 he was an unsuccessful candidate for election to the United States Senate.

Tyson volunteered for service at the outbreak of World War I and was commissioned brigadier general in command of all Tennessee National Guard troops. President Wilson soon assigned him to the 59th Brigade and sent him to train the troops at Camp Sevier, Greenville, South Carolina. His brigade of about 8,000 men embarked for France in May 1918 and in July joined British troops fighting in Belgium. They saw almost continuous action through October 1918 with over 3,000 killed or wounded. The brigade's signal achievement was its participation in breaking the heavily fortified Hindenburg line. Brigadier General Tyson subsequently received the Distinguished Service Medal. Sadly, however, while fighting in France Tyson received word of his son's death in a plane crash at Killingholme, England.

In 1919, after Tyson returned to Knoxville, he took his business career in yet another direction when he bought the Knoxville Sentinel and became its president and publisher. In 1920, the State Democratic convention endorsed Tyson for vice-president, but he withdrew his name and seconded the nomination of Franklin Delano Roosevelt at the national convention. In 1923 Tyson became president of the American Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

Tyson's aspirations to national political office were finally fulfilled when he became United States Senator from Tennessee in 1925. In the Senate he advocated adherence to the World Court; co-authored the Tyson-Fitzgerald bill, giving full retirement compensation to disabled emergency officers of the First World War; and supported legislation to aid agricultural interests and tighten immigration restrictions. He served on a variety of Senate committees, including banking and currency; commerce; education and labor; manufactures; and military affairs. Tyson died before the end of his Senate term at a sanatorium in Pennsylvania in August 1929.

The Tyson House History

According to the Knoxville News-Sentinel of January 9, 1935, the house was built by Julius Lewis of New York near the end of the last century. It was bought by Mr. James M. Meek, a prominent Knoxville businessman, who sold it to Lawrence D. Tyson around 1895. Lawrence Tyson was Commandant-Professor of Military Science at The University of Tennessee. He later became a General and also served as a United States Senator.

In 1908, Colonel Tyson engaged the popular architect, George F. Barber, to remodel his home. The original house was torn down to the foundation, which was incorporated into the new house.

On Sunday, May 12, 1908, the Knoxville Journal carried a picture and description of the new house. The house has three stories and eleven main rooms. A ballroom and banquet room are located on the third floor. The ballroom was the scene of Isabella Tyson's debut and many other glittering social events.

The first floor contained the reception hall, entry and stair halls, a drawing room furnished with Louis XVI period gilt furniture imported from Italy and a library paneled in Flemish oak. Across the hall from the library was General Tyson's Den. The dining room was furnished with massive hand-carved furniture imported from England - probably Jacobean. A breakfast room, butler's pantry, kitchen and servant's dining room completed the main floor.

The second floor had five bedrooms and baths, also sleeping quarters for the servants in an L opening from the back hall. The architecture is a combination of many orders, among them Louis XV.

Large porches ornamented the front and North sides with a porte cochere on the South side of the house. All supported by massive Corinthian columns.

The grounds formed great terraces with walls, balustrades and many urns of flowers and vines. Greenhouses were in operation in the General's lifetime. All have been removed.

General Tyson married Bettie McGhee, a descendant of General James White, founder of Knoxville. They had two children, McGhee Tyson, a naval aviator in World War I, who was killed while on anti-submarine patrol in the North Sea, and Isabella, who married Kenneth Gilpin of "Scaleby", Boyce, Virginia.

In 1934, Isabella Tyson Gilpin gave the house to St. John's Episcopal Church to be used as a student center. UT bought the house in 1954. It housed the Extension Offices for many years and was later occupied by the Art Department. The Department of Alumni Affairs, Knoxville Campus moved to Tyson House on February 9, 1892.

Children of BETTIE MCGHEE and LAWRENCE TYSON are:

- i. CHARLES MCGHEE¹⁰ TYSON.

Notes for CHARLES MCGHEE TYSON:
McGhee Tyson Air National Guard Base - Alcoa, TN

The base's history dates to the 1920s when the family of Lt. Charles McGhee Tyson donated land for an airfield to the city of Knoxville. The only stipulation expressed by the family was that it carry their son's name. A naval aviator, he was killed in World War I. Lieutenant Tyson's airplane was lost on a raid on a German submarine base at Zeebrugge, Belgium.

In 1952, McGhee Tyson became an Air Force base to protect East Tennessee industry during the Cold War. Government leaders said the base was necessary to protect Oak Ridge, the Aluminum Company of America and TVA dams. In 1957, it became part of the Air National Guard.

A little digging into an airport's history will sometimes reveal that the facility was named in memory of a local hero. For example, the airport in Knoxville, Tenn. Charles McGhee Tyson was a rich bachelor playboy, and local legend has it that he did pretty much whatever he wanted, wherever he was. One story tells of the time he and a date were at a local country club and the firewood ran out, so to make sure his date stayed warm, he broke up the club's furniture to keep the fire going. Tyson managed to stay out of WWI until the last two months of the war. Even so, he uncharacteristically volunteered for his unit's very last mission. As fate would have it, he was killed when his plane went down in the thick English fog.

In the mid-1940s, Tyson's mother donated land for the construction of an airport. Her only stipulation was that it be named after her son. That explains why it's known as McGhee Tyson Airport (TYS).

Of a foggy October morning and the naming of an airport
by Jack Neely

Ladies described him as "charming," but he wasn't necessarily the sort of guy you'd think of as a tragic hero. You've probably met him yourself: the West Knoxville boy who goes to the Ivy League college and comes home to work for his dad's company. The handsome unmarried playboy who, even in his late 20s, still lives with his parents. The rich, idle kid who spends most of his free time hanging around Cherokee Country Club playing golf.

Until the war came along, that pretty much described the life of Charles McGhee Tyson. He must have known his career would never compare to Dad's: Lawrence Davis Tyson was the army colonel who'd chased Geronimo's Apaches across the West, led a regiment against the Spanish in '98 and become military governor of Puerto Rico, and later still, speaker of the Tennessee House of Representatives. Then, in 1917, General Tyson was leading troops into the Great War.

The boy's mother, Bettie Tyson was also a formidable presence, wealthy heiress of Knoxville's biggest railroad tycoon of the industrial age, Charles McClung McGhee, for whom the young Tyson-everyone called him McGhee-was named.

His parents shipped McGhee off to boarding school in New Hampshire, then to Princeton. He graduated at 23 and returned to Knoxville, where his parents had built a huge mansion just west of the university.

Living down the hall from a military legend, working as an executive in his dad's textile mills, young McGhee's main extracurricular concern was golf. He helped design Cherokee's developing golf course, organized some early golf tournaments, won a few.

His manner charmed many-"dear, light-hearted, fascinating McGhee," a friend described him-and like a lot of rich kids, he did pretty much whatever he wanted. One story made the rounds, about the cold night that he and a date somehow had Cherokee Country Club all to themselves. When the fire died out, he couldn't find any cut firewood. Reluctant to take his date home just because the clubhouse was getting chilly, he smashed up some furniture and fed it into the fireplace so he and his girlfriend could get on with business.

He may have been feeling a little aimless, pushing 28, when America joined the big war in Europe, and his dad enlisted before he did.

He enlisted in the Naval Reserve Flying Corps in July, 1917-and spent more than a year waiting quietly in the States. He took a course in naval aviation in Boston, went into advanced air training down at Pensacola. War service didn't get in the way of this ensign's serving as a groomsman at his younger sister's wedding here in March 1918. As his dad, the 57-year-old brigadier general, was leading a brigade in Europe, Ensign Tyson was still in New York, probably suspecting he'd never see action. His superiors told him they had a nice desk job for him in Washington.

He broke Knoxville hearts when he married a New York girl in June. But that August, he heard he was finally going to get to see Europe himself. When Ensign Tyson came back to Knoxville one last time to spend a week with his mother at the family palace, the local papers reported the German retreat and speculated about the terms of peace. While he was here, the Strand Theater on Gay Street ran a silent war movie called To Hell With the Kaiser, which advertised the primacy of "American aeroplanes." On his 29th birthday, McGhee Tyson boarded a ship for England.

It might have seemed a safe assignment, serving with an aerial unit based in England that dropped mines in the North Sea to combat the U-boat threat. By the time Tyson arrived at the naval base near the mouth of the River Humber, the tide of war had already turned, and Allied troops—including his father's brigade—were marching toward Belgium and the Netherlands, where the U-boats were based.

For his few weeks there, Ensign Tyson purchased supplies for the unit, a job probably not much different from his job working for his dad's cotton mills in Knoxville. He did it so well, he was promoted to lieutenant.

He'd been on duty for less than two months when he applied for leave; his family later speculated that he wanted to take a little vacation in London. But then, when his commanding officer asked for volunteers for one more aerial mine-dropping mission, Lt. Tyson volunteered. Peace was nigh, and Tyson may have wanted to be more a part of this war before it was over.

What happened at dawn on that October Friday isn't precisely clear, the subject of disagreement for 80 years now. Some stories have Lt. Tyson as a pilot on an anti-submarine mission, shot down by the Germans over the North Sea. The contemporary newspaper accounts are less stirring.

The reports of 1918 have Tyson not as the pilot of the aircraft, but as "second pilot," one of a crew of four. His job was to handle the gun in front. He apparently never had a chance to. Not long after takeoff, they say, the large plane spiraled into the ocean in a thick English fog; some accounts have it colliding with another Allied aircraft. Rescuers recovered the bodies of two crewmen. The pilot survived.

Then, and for weeks afterward, Lt. McGhee Tyson was officially "missing, probably drowned." Rescuers cited the fierce currents where the Humber empties into the North Sea as the reason he went under.

Soon after Armistice Day, a month after the crash, they found McGhee Tyson. While the rest of western Europe celebrated, General Tyson was identifying the body of his son.

Mrs. Tyson shipped McGhee home and, two days before Thanksgiving, had him buried at the cemetery already known as Old Gray.

Years later, Bettie Tyson donated land for a park and an airstrip—under the condition that Knoxville's airport be named after her only son, the aviator.

581. CORNELIUS COFFIN⁹ WILLIAMS (*THOMAS LANIER*⁸, *JOHN*⁷, *MELINDA*⁶ WHITE, *JAMES*⁵, *MOSES*⁴, *MOSES*³, *HUGH*², *ADAM*¹) was born August 21, 1879 in Knoxville, Knox County, TN, and died March 21, 1957 in Knoxville, Knox County, TN. He married EDWINA ESTELLE DAKIN June 03, 1907 in Columbus, Loundes County, Mississippi, daughter of WALTER DAKIN and ROSINA OTTE. She was born August 09, 1884 in Marysville, Union County, OH, and died June 01, 1980 in St. Louis, MO.

Children of CORNELIUS WILLIAMS and EDWINA DAKIN are:

- i. ROSE ISABELLA¹⁰ WILLIAMS, b. November 09, 1908, Columbus, Lowndes, MS; d. September 04, 1996, Tarrytown, NY.

Notes for ROSE ISABELLA WILLIAMS:

Tennessee was close to his sister, Rose Williams, who was perhaps the greatest influence on him. She was an elegant, slim beauty who was subject to severe nervous attacks and was diagnosed with schizophrenia. Mentally ill and emotionally disturbed, she spent most of her adult life in mental hospitals. After various unsuccessful attempts at therapy, her parents eventually allowed a prefrontal lobotomy in an effort to treat her. The operation, performed in 1943, in Washington, D.C. went badly, and Rose remained incapacitated for the rest of her life.

Rose's failed lobotomy was a hard blow to Tennessee, who never forgave his parents for allowing the operation. It may have been one of the factors that drove him to alcoholism. The common "mad heroine" theme that appears in many of his plays may have been influenced by his sister.

- ii. THOMAS LANIER WILLIAMS, b. March 26, 1911, Canton, Madison County, MS; d. February 25, 1983, New York, New York.

Notes for THOMAS LANIER WILLIAMS:

Tennessee Williams, born Thomas Lanier Williams on March 26, 1911, in Columbus, Mississippi, began his literary career at the age of 16 with the publication of his essay, "Can a Good Wife Be a Good Sport?" in Smart Set (May 1927).

After graduating in 1929 from University City High School, St. Louis, Missouri, Williams enrolled at the University of Missouri. His first play, "Beauty Is the Word" was produced at the University in 1930 and won honorable mention in a campus contest.

Because of the difficulties of the Depression, Tennessee Williams was forced to take a job at the St. Louis Shoe Company in 1931 and by 1932 left the University. During the years that followed, Williams continued to write and in 1935 he won first prize in the St. Louis Writers Guild contest for his story, "Stella for Star." Between 1935 and 1938, when he received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Iowa, over thirty of his poems and short stories were published and several of his plays produced. Some of these early plays included Cairo Shanghai, Bombay!, The Magic Grove, Candles to the Sun, and The Fugitive Kind.

In 1939 his story, "The Field of Blue Children," was the first published under his newly assumed name, Tennessee Williams. By 1939 Williams had also begun to travel extensively. His destinations included New York, New Orleans, Acapulco, Provincetown, Macon (Georgia), Key West (Florida), and Taos (New Mexico). During his travels Williams worked at odd jobs, including a period as a scriptwriter for Hollywood. He continued to write and had several of his plays produced.

In 1944 the production of his play, "The Glass Menagerie", initiated a period of financial success and critical and popular acclaim for Williams. "The Glass Menagerie" ran for 561 performances in New York and won the Drama Critics' Circle Award. Followed by several plays of lesser success, in 1947 Williams again scored a hit with "A Streetcar Named Desire", which had a run of 855 performances. "A Streetcar Named Desire" not only won a second Drama Critic's Circle Award for Williams, but a Pulitzer Prize as well.

In the following years Tennessee Williams continued to create numerous plays, including "Summer and Smoke" (1948), "The Rose Tattoo" (1951), "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" (1955, won a second Pulitzer Prize), "Sweet Bird of Youth" (1959), "Period of Adjustment" (1960), "The Night of the Iguana" (1961), and "Small Craft Warnings" (1972).

Fifteen of Tennessee Williams's plays or stories were also adapted to film and became classics. Some of the better known films are The Glass Menagerie, A Streetcar Named Desire, Cat on a Hot Tin Roof, and The Night of the Iguana.

In addition to his plays, Williams wrote short stories which were included in the collections "One Arm" (1948) and "Hard Candy" (1954); essays, some of which were collected in "Where I Live" (1978); novels, including "The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone" (1950) and "Moise and the World of Reason" (1975); a collection of poems titled "Androgyne, Mon Amour" (1977); and his autobiographical Memoirs (1975).

On February 24, 1983, Tennessee Williams choked to death on a bottle cap at his New York City residence at the Hotel Elysee. However, some (among them is Dakin Williams, his brother) believe he was murdered. Alternately, the police report from his death seems to indicate that drugs were involved, as it states that pills were found under his body. He is buried in St. Louis, Missouri despite his stated desire to be buried at sea at approximately the same place as the poet Hart Crane, whom he considered one of his most significant influences. In addition to twenty-five full length plays, Williams produced dozens of short plays and screenplays, two novels, a novella, sixty short stories, over one-hundred poems and an autobiography. Among his many awards, he won two Pulitzer Prizes and four New York Drama Critics' Circle Awards. His work continues to be widely performed and he is recognized as one of America's foremost playwrights of the twentieth century. He left his literary rights to Sewanee, The University of the South in honor of his grandfather, Walter Dakin, an alumnus of the University. The funds today support a creative writing program
